BAY REGION WELCOMES MYSTIC SHRINE

GOAT ISLAND TERMINAL PLAN TOLD

Designs of Engineers Show That 170 Acres of New Land Will Be Made On Shoals; Deep Channel

Federal Agents Given Details of Proposed Construction: Connecting Link Is Held Only Serious Problem

Revealing plans for a terminal considerably larger than first contemplated and one separated from Goat Island by a narrow, deep water harbor, the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railway today placed its proposal, in its entirety before a group of government experts.

The proposal to build on the Goat Island shoals a terminal, ferry building and rail yards was voiced by Edward M. Boggs, consulting engineer to Major-Gen. L. E. Beach, chief of the army engineers; C. H. Huston, assistant secretary of commerce; Rear-Admiral W. S. Halstead and Colonel Herbert Deaking in San Francisco today. It was made in a comprehensive manner, offering a choice of construction methods.

The company argued that the greatest single item of cost in such a span to Goat Island would be the crossing of the deep channel. This crossing could be made by a solid embankment of rock and earth by a trestle, or by a bridge. Argument to show that the solid embankment would not interfere with the tidal flow and was the most desirable was presented by Boggs, who spoke, also, of the other plans which could be used in case the first named met with objection.

TO CUT DOWN TIME OF BAY JOURNEY.

The company called attention to the fact that a vehicular bridge for Dumbarton cut-off seemed a probability, but that a bridge would be the upper part of the bay would not be built in years. It said that eight minutes could be cut off from the running time across the bay and showed with maps and pictures the plans for the terminal.

Boggs said in part: "Crowded together along the Eastbay shore are ten incorporated cities which, according to the census of 1920, contained a population of 339,275.

"Beyond these cities are the populous Livermore, San Ramon, Moraga and other valleys thickly dotted with towns, and still farther eastward behind these hills and beyond the limits of the map is the great San Joaquin-Sacramento valley—an empire in itself. The inhabitants of this hinterland find their way to San Francisco Bay by a number of highways, some through Dublin Canyon, some by the tunnel road directly behind Oakland, and some by way of Martinez and San Pablo. All these highways converge upon Oakland and make it the logical point of departure for the trip across the bay to San Francisco.

"The distance around the bay from the Oakland city hall to the San Francisco Ferry building by the shortest highway route is eighty miles; by the proposed Goat Island terminal it is just one-tenth of that distance. By way of the proposed Dumbarton crossing the distance between the same two points would be sixty-two miles.

"A highway bridge seems likely to be built, alongside the railway bridge at Dumbarton Point within the near future; one crossing the bay at Coyote Point, one may be built; but a ferry line is more likely to be built, as it will be of so slight benefit to the strictly transbay vehicular traffic, and none at all to the immense inter-urban and railway travel crossing the bay.

41,000,000 USE FERRIES IN YEAR.

Official records of the United States steamboat inspection service show that during the year 1921 the ferry lines transported 41,000,000 passengers between San Francisco and the Eastbay cities.

"There is every reason for the belief that if ever a bridge or tunnel is constructed that will supplant the ferry service now operating between Oakland and San Francisco, it will be a time so distant as to be negligible to the present generation.

"The plan now tentatively suggested does not touch the island itself at any point, but relies upon the reclamation of a portion of the extensive shoal adjoining the island on its northern side.

"The area outlined on the exhibits, embracing some 170 acres, is believed to be the minimum area that will provide adequate facilities for present-day traffic, with a

A MAN IN THE WAY

ONCE in a while, scrubbed and brushed into a feeling of being dressed up, Curly Vincer, homesteaded, rode over the pasture lands through the pass and to the home of Miss Orputt. He would have made the journey more often had the girl permitted, just as he would have included her in his plans for the future. Seven miles apart, they were "nearest neighbors," companions in the lone adventure of winning land from the government by residence and work.

"You have proved on your land and it's yours," Miss Orputt had said on the day he rode over to tell her his vigil was served. "I suppose you will be going back to the city. In a short time now this land will be mine. I intend to make my home right here, to raise cattle, and"—she smiled—"grow up with the country. After I've proved up, Curly, you may call more often than twice a month, if you like. We may even organize an improvement club and a chamber of commerce. When I know this place is mine, mine to keep, we will celebrate with a dinner."

"And then?" asked Curly, coming as near as he dared to the forbidden question.

"And then," smiled Miss Orputt, "well, we'll wait and see."

It was typical of the girl that she was "Miss Orputt" to all of those who rode through the pass or had their residence in the little town from whence she purchased her supplies. A school teacher in the East, she had registered in a land drawing, staking her future on the turn of a number. When her name appeared near the head of the list she knew the decision had been made. She became the farmer, ranch owner and business woman and took to the life in a way to win a wide admiration.

Miss Orputt put all of her attention and energies into the improvement work the government demanded. There would be no courtship, she decided when Curly appeared, and few hours of leisure until the place was proved. Now, with the time almost up, she was already showing a small profit for her labors. She was healthy and happy.

CURLY, on his horse, stopped on the brow of a slope and looked down at the narrow pass beyond which was spread Miss Orputt's ranch. "Must be pretty near time she's going into the land office to prove," he thought. "Hello!"

In the gully, where the road cut through two steep hills, a horseman was sitting, behind a large rock. Instinctively Curly moved behind a clump of manzanita from whence he watched the other. "He's waiting, for someone, guarding the approach," Curly decided. "And it looks like Young Jackson." The homesteader knew Young and Old Jackson only as men who had boasted the girl could never stick out to prove her claim. In town it was said they had their eyes on the place and were ready to take it should the give up.

Kicking the dust, Miss Orputt's horse rounded the turn. Jackson blocked her way. Curly, following a creek bed, shortened the distance and planned his actions. What was the man up to?

Taking his rope with him the homesteader dismounted and crept along the slope, keeping behind the rock and such as possible. The two below were too interested to notice his approach. Miss Orputt was pleading with Jackson to let her pass and, silently, with revolver in hand, he blocked the road. In desperation the girl spurred her horse and tried to rush past. Curly swore when he saw the man seize the bridle of her horse, turn the animal around and slap it on the flank. "That's his game, is it? If he doesn't get to the office tonight he can claim the land on a technical relinquishment!"

WHEN Curly peered over the rock and down at the two, Miss Orputt, defiant, was fighting back the tears. The fruits of her working were to be stolen from her by this man who would not let her pass. She sat on her horse and looked angrily into his insolent face. Curly started as he heard her voice.

"You're not to worry, you pull cents in this country if you pull trick like this." She was trembling and magnificent in her rage. What made Curly start was the gentle Miss Orputt swearing lustily with the full force of a limited vocabulary. She saw

Hurricane Which Lasts But 5 Minutes Claims Many Lives; Pleasure Seekers Die as Boats Are Wrecked

Storm Felt Over Wide Area and Loss in Property Will Run Into Millions; Seven Crushed By Ferris Wheel

BY UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Reports were received here this afternoon of a new storm sweeping upper New York state. Telegraph lines were cut by the rain between Troy and Syracuse.

The area of the new gale extended eastward from the vicinity of Schenectady to the New England states. Wire communication between New York and Montreal was interrupted by the storm.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The death list leaped ahead when an incoming tide returned with eight more bodies that had been swept out to sea last night.

The New York Weather Bureau reports the storm lasted only five minutes. It was described as "a severe thunder squall," during which the wind averaged 72 miles an hour. There was a brief period when the wind velocity touched 88 miles.

BY UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

NEW YORK, June 12.—A tornado which carried death and destruction to New York and extended to New England, Pennsylvania and Ohio, yesterday caused an estimated loss of nearly fifty lives, injured hundreds and resulted in property damage of millions of dollars.

No accurate estimate of the total damage was made. The loss of life and property will be considerable, for the tornado, first of its kind known in the east, swept away evidences of its destruction along with its victims.

New York police have a death list of 48 and reports from up state bring the total to 50, while it is believed many casualties were unreported.

A Ferris wheel which was crushed and toppled over carried six people to their death.

Boats in City Island waters were swallowed up by the twisting cyclone, many to vanish from sight forever.

Pitiful scenes were enacted at City Island today as the bath houses to which many victims never returned were broken open and clothing, unclaimed, taken to police quarters for possible identification.

Relatives of victims crowded headquarters and went to the island in boats to identify property of loved ones.

Eleven bodies were picked up by a police boat today.

Pittsburgh, Boston and other east cities felt the edge of the storm, which centered in the vicinity of Greater New York.

PLEASURE BOATS SWEEP BY STORM.

Nothing like the storm was known in the memory of the oldest inhabitant, for the sound and fury about New York have been free from the peril of cyclones. Yesterday's brief blast, however, had all the characteristics of a prairie twister. It cut a swath up the bay, pleasure yachts a half a mile from its path riding squally waters in safety, their opponents, swimmers to appalling tragedies in the wake of the storm.

On land the tornado assumed the same terrifying proportions. Trees were whirled up from their roots and hurled through the air like giant ninjeps. One was sent smashing through the roof of an inn, pinning a woman and a little girl to their deaths beneath it.

Huge advertising signs in New York City, towering over skyscrapers, were slapped down as if by an invisible hand and sent spinning high over the roof tops. Trees everywhere bowed before the storm, spreading a litter of broken branches.

SEVEN CRUSHED AS BIG WHEEL FALLS.

On New York City proper seven persons were killed and twenty-six injured when the winds and torrential rains tore a Ferris wheel from its base at Claxon Point park and catapulted it through the air to the beach.

The passengers were hurled to the ground and a mass of twisted steel and their bodies crushed, many of them almost beyond recognition. One woman was crushed today.

The gale swept into the amusement resort without an indication of approaching storm other than a low hanging, seemingly harmless, dark cloud.

It was estimated today that 200 craft around the City Island waters were capsized by the storm and Canton Leader Moves to Block Elections; Chang Attacks Wu Forces.

LONDON, June 12 (By the Associated Press).—The army of Sun Yat Sen, Southern Chinese leader, has captured Kanchow Ki, in Kiangsi province, according to a Hongkong despatch to the Daily Mail.

TIEN-TSIN, China, June 12 (By the Associated Press).—General Chang Tso-Lin's proposals for an armistice with Wu Pei-Fu appeared to have been simply a ruse to gain time for the defeated Manchurian war lord.

Heavy fighting broke out Friday between Chinwangtao and Shan-hai-kwan. The battle has been raging steadily for the past three days.

Today Chang's Fengtien forces launched a violent drive against the right flank of the Chihli army at the mouth of the Gulf of Liaotung. The assault was repulsed. Two carloads of wounded are en route from the front.

General Wu Pei-Fu has ordered his third division considered the best trained, fighting unit in China, to leave today for the front.

By RAY G. MARSHALL, United Press Staff Correspondent. PEKING, China, June 12.—Further complications in her governmental affairs beset China today.

Sun Yat Sen, head of the Republican government, issued a manifesto threatening imprisonment of the Chinese parliament to prevent holding the proposed presidential election, in case Wu Ting-fang assumes the premiership of the Peking government to succeed Yen Hui-ching, who has been elected as temporary premier.

JAPANESE LIBERALS TRIUMPH WITH KATO

By JAMES MCCLAIN, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

TOKYO, June 12.—Liberals triumphed in the selection by Baron Admiral Kato, new premier of Japan, and Rontaro Mizuno, civil governor of Korea, as minister of foreign affairs.

This appointment and the evident fact that prior to accepting Admiral Kato forced an understanding between conflicting elements, thus insuring majorities in both houses, were the outstanding features today in connection with the formation of the new ministry.

Governor Mizuno has been conferred the post of the nation's chief executive. Li came from Tientsin in response to the call of the revived republican parliament, which recently met there, that he again assume the direction of China's affairs.

The unification of China is declared in official circles here to have been brought considerably nearer by Wu Ting-fang's acceptance of the premiership. It is contended that Dr. Sun Yat-sen, president of the Republic of South China, in whose structure Wu has been a consistent pillar of strength, will be unable much longer to maintain a separate government.

By UNITED PRESS LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

TOKYO, June 12.—Viscount Uchida, minister of foreign affairs in the cabinet of Premier Kato, which was formed yesterday, issued a statement today, informing them that there would be no change in the policies of the Japanese cabinet. Uchida served as foreign minister in the previous cabinet under Premier Takahashi.

KLANSMEN TO GO ON TRIAL AUG. 7

Indicted L. A. Members Pled Not Guilty; Roped Off Like Sheep.

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—Thirty-five indicted members of the Ku Klux Klan, herded before Judge Houser here today, pleaded not guilty to the charge voted against them. The trials were set for August 7.

The klansmen, who are said to have terrorized the town of Inglewood by a masked raid on the night of April 22, looked more like sheep than night riders as they were marshaled into a roped off space in the courtroom by their attorneys, Paul Parkins and D'Orr.

Each of the men indicted was charged with assault with intent to commit murder, false imprisonment and kidnapping.

French and Vatican Relations Strained

ROME, June 12.—Plans for closer relations between France and the Holy See appear to have encountered a serious reverse. Newspapers of this city mildly predict the recall of Monsignor Cerretti, papal nuncio in Paris, and say that Charles G. A. Jonnart, French ambassador extraordinary to the Vatican, who is at present away from Rome, may not return.

The situation is said to have developed after Pope Pius sent his letter to the archbishop of Genoa just before the economic conference met in that city, which resulted in some feeling on the part of the French delegation to Genoa.

COLOR BLAZE IS GREETING FOR NOBLES

Amid Crash of Music and Gorgeous Decorations S.F. and Oakland Acclaim Sons of Arabia on Their Arrival

Characteristic California Welcome Is Extended to the Distinguished Visitors: Entertainment Is Varied

Amid the crash of band music, the blaze of trumpets and the roll of drums, the waving of flags and the shouts of the multitude, Shrine Convention Wee was officially ushered in this morning. One great blaze of color marks the spot today on the map where the San Francisco bay region, Mecca of Mystic Shrine, is located, and the colors are the red-gold-green of Shrinedom!

To extend a characteristic California welcome to the honored guests, who started arriving by trainloads and boatloads early yesterday morning, the citizens of the bay cities have turned out in their thousands. The influx of Shrine visitors was maintained at an ever-increasing rate throughout the day, the long, flag-bedecked trains following one another in quick succession, and today the climax of this unprecedented travel will be reached.

Though the sessions of the Imperial Council do not open officially until tomorrow morning, the program of entertainment commenced the moment the Nobles set foot in San Francisco. Characteristically, the first ceremonial performed by the Shriners was in the name of Charity, when thousands of red-faced Nobles gathered on the site of the future Shrine Hospital for Crippled Children and witnessed the breaking of the ground for the new building.

NOBLES ENTERTAINED AT MANY FESTIVITIES.

Every hour of the day has been accounted for in the elaborate program of entertainment laid down for today. The nobles are being entertained at luncheons, dinners, theater parties and band concerts galore, and at many other festivities. Large parties of fest-wearing visitors are making their way through the streets, accompanied by official Shriners, guides or by members of the various citizen hospitality committees. On all sides are heard expressions of gratification regarding the warmth of the welcome offered the visitors and the splendor of the decorative scheme.

The visiting Shriners are meeting many old friends and former fellow-townsmen among the members of the various state hospitality committees who are entertaining them. Many of the visitors are spending today to good advantage by getting acquainted with San Francisco bay scenery and are taking trips up Mount Tamalpais, over the Eastbay territory and beyond.

SHOWN CITY BESIDE WESTERN GATE.

Endless rows of automobiles are making their way through Golden Gate park, past the beaches and over Twin Peaks, showing the visitors the scenic wonders of the "city beside the western gate." Several of the state societies have arranged picnics for this afternoon in Muir Woods and many Shriners who have nautical inclinations are testing their "sea legs" in launch trips over San Francisco bay, even venturing beyond the Gate.

The strains of music rendered by the bands of the Shrine temples are heard on all sides, and are drawing huge audiences. During the morning the visitors are presented a special program on the organ at the Civic Auditorium, which was attended by a large gathering of Shrine visitors, who enthusiastically applauded the performance of the noted organist. Subsequently the famous band of El Mina Temple, Galveston, Texas, gave a half-hour concert at the auditorium, followed by the less famous chanters of Za-Ga-Zig of the Des Moines, Iowa, Nobles.

BANDS AND CHANTERS HEARD IN CONCERTS.

The band of Syria, Pittsburgh, which includes several Symphony artists, the chanters of Medina Temple, Chicago, Affil band of Tacoma, Wash., Ben Hur band of Austin, Texas, Crescent, of Trenton, N. J. and several others also gave short concerts during the day marching to the Civic Auditorium in full gala and rendering martial airs and lively marches to the delight of the multitude lining the sidewalks.

This evening one of the most striking events of the entire week takes place, when thousands of Shriners, representing practically all of the Shrine chapters' organizations, will sing in mass at the

OAKLAND WELCOMES CARAVANS OF MYSTIC SHRINERS ON ARRIVAL

BATHING GIRLS' COSTUMES WILL DAZZLE NOBLES

Eyefull of Feminine Beauty Promised Visitors At Idora Park Revue.

"An eyefull of feminine attractiveness awaits the visiting Shriners and their wives at Aahmes temple bathing girls' revue on Wednesday, Oakland day," was the comment this morning of L. E. Lund, a member of the committee in charge of the afternoon celebration for the day.

"A large number of girls have already been enrolled for the contest, and as two days still remain within which the girls may put their applications in, we are sure of having a score or more in the beach parade, with a dazzling array of costumes at Idora park," Lund continued. "Any girl is eligible to compete, and if she has no costume provision has been made whereby she may get one at the park by telephoning."

Nobles of Aahmes temple will be hosts at luncheon, which will be served between 12:30 and 1:30 at the park. Each uniformed noble will be given a book of coupons that will be good also for admittance to all the concessions.

It is planned to hold short and impressive exercises at 3 o'clock in observance of National Flag Day, with J. H. Macfarland as the speaker. Miss Thelma Thelmar will be heard in a solo, and will lead in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

The bathing girls' revue will be staged beginning at 3:30. The sight-seeing automobile tours of the Eastbay city will start at 1 o'clock on Wednesday and will continue until 4 o'clock. Machines for the tourists will be parked at the Shattuck avenue entrance to the park.

ALL SHRINERS CAN HAVE GOOD VIEW OF EASTBAY

Special elevator service to the top of the Oakland city hall was inaugurated today so that all the visiting Shriners who desire may have an opportunity of viewing the Eastbay from this elevation. The special service which consists in the operation of the entire fleet of city hall elevators, in place of the two usually in commission, will be maintained throughout the entire week, according to Albert E. Carter, commissioner of public works.

French Newspaper To Open N. Y. Office

NEW YORK, June 12.—With the purpose of interpreting American life and thought to the people of France, the newspaper Le Figaro, of Paris, will henceforth devote weekly a measurable proportion of its space to American affairs. Le Figaro is going to depart, in a measure, from precedent. It has opened an office in New York in charge of Louis Thomas and C. M. Lerner, who will send it by cable and by mail news of the United States, particularly matters in which both countries are interested, as well as descriptive stories of American life and financial, industrial and political articles. Le Figaro was purchased on November 10, 1921, by M. Cory.

Aahmes Temple Women to Be Hostesses Whole Week

Special committees of women for each day of the Shriners' week have been appointed by Mrs. Thomas W. Norris, wife of the illustrious Potentate of Aahmes Temple to provide for the needs and entertainment of the wives and families of the visiting Nobles.

Yesterday the feminine members of the great national caravan were taken in charge by the first of the seven committees, headed by Miss Alma Naismith. Today the committee in charge of the women's activities was that operating under the leadership of Mrs. B. A. Forster, Mrs. H. A. Stiver and Mrs. E. F. Hughes.

Headquarters for the activities in connection with the entertainment of visiting Shrine women has been established at the Aahmes Temple lodgerooms. Thirtieth and Harrison streets. Continuous open house is being held there and a large portion of the establishment has been converted into lounging rooms for both men and women visitors.

The women's committees are to have charge of arrangements for numerous automobile trips, golf tournaments, teas and other social functions. Many of these entertainment features will be provided for small groups of visitors in charge of various committee members.

The hostesses for each day of Shriners' week, together with those who will act as their assistants, follow:

OAKLAND SHOWS SPIRIT OF UNITY

Further appreciation of the zeal and thoroughness with which the Eastbay people have prepared for and opened the Shriners' celebration was voiced today by Potentate Thomas W. Norris of Aahmes Temple, and Chairman Harry S. Anderson, of the reception committee.

"We got away with a splendid smash yesterday all the way up and down the line," Potentate Norris said, "and the celebration is speeding up every hour. Officers and nobles of Aahmes Temple are immensely pleased over the reception accorded the overland auto caravan from the national capital and the other delegations that landed in Oakland yesterday. The auto caravan was given fine treatment at every town in the valley, and particularly at Hayward where the Hayward men and women entertained fully 700 at luncheon."

"I am impressed today by the unity of spirit the Oakland people have shown and are showing. All the people have given us of their time and endeavor and moral support, and the effect is gratifying."

"The people, the business and professional men, county and city authorities, police and firemen and ladies—they are responsible for what success may be obtained in my department of the celebration," said Anderson. "They have been generous of their services in arranging for the illumination of Lake Merritt, the assembling and mounting of material for the electric fountain and the preparation of the temple pavilion so as to make it attractive and comfortable for visitors."

Arthur Ramage, chairman of the committee on decorations, also expressed his gratification over the cooperation of committees with which all classes "dressed up" for the occasion. "Some folks may have thought we were a long time getting around to the display of our colors, but they concede now that when our men and others did get started they went through with it creditably," Ramage said.

Wives of Visiting Nobles Entertained

Almost at the last minute, with the convention practically upon them, the nobles of the host committee of Aahmes Temple found that they needed help in entertaining the thousands of women who would accompany their husbands to the convention. Only last Wednesday, realizing that only women can know exactly what women like to do with their spare time, Islam called Mrs. Ira W. Coburn and Mrs. D. E. F. Easton into council with the result that these two have assembled a sufficient number of women to take care of the wives of visiting nobles and to see that they are busy every minute, or are allowed to rest or do whatever may be their whim.

Mrs. Coburn, wife of Islam, wife of the Imperial party, heads the committee which will entertain informally the wives of the visiting nobles.

THIPS ARE ARRANGED. Mrs. Easton, with a group of 900, will see that the wives of nobles do not have a lonely moment. With their own motor cars the committee members are escorting the visiting women to the band concerts, on informal shopping tours, where they will whisper the secrets of profitable buying, and through the alluring haunts of Chinatown.

Both heads of committees are finding all sorts of duties which were not officially delegated to them.

"The men are so busy," said Mrs. Coburn, "that they haven't time to tell us what to do, so we are arranging teas and dinners and balls, and answering a thousand questions."

SEEK OLD FRIENDS. Time and again, these women are called to the phone by some woman in San Francisco who has been away from her beloved childhood home in the east or the middle west, who is looking to the convention as a means of renewing old acquaintances, and must be told exactly where the delegation from her home town is stopping.

Mrs. Aaron Schloss of Berkeley is representing the women's committee for Islam in the Eastbay and Mrs. T. W. Norris has been appointed chairman for Aahmes. Mrs. Norris and Mrs. Schloss will have a number of women in attendance in all the hotels in Oakland and Berkeley to assure visiting women that the latching is out and to see that, for them, there will not be a dull moment during the Golden Jubilee.

OAKLAND HOTELS ARE THROGGLED WITH SHRINE VISITORS

NOBLES ARRIVE IN OAKLAND FOR BIG CONVENTION

Many Large Caravans of Eastern Shriners Make Headquarters Here.

Shriners from near and far gathered at the Hotel Oakland today and more are coming in to attend the Shrine convention in San Francisco.

The visitors began to arrive in Oakland yesterday morning and there has been a constant stream ever since. The local hostelry is the headquarters for a number of temples and many individuals have selected it as their temporary home.

Among the big delegations are the Sinal Temple of Montpelier, New Hampshire, headed by illustrious Potentate J. R. Seales and Mrs. Seales. The wife of the potentate is the only woman in the caravan. This section, consisting of about seventy Shriners, came west over a Canadian route and will return via the southern route, according to the present plans.

THIRD OLDEST SHRINE.

St. Martin Temple is the third oldest Shrine temple in North America, having been established in 1815 according to Seales.

Another big delegation is on hand from Aleppo Temple in Boston. The caravan is in charge of Clarence C. Colpitts, who is accompanied by Mrs. Colpitts.

The delegation left Boston on June 2 and passed through Michigan and the Lake region of Minnesota. On June 6 they stopped at the Banff Springs Hotel at the entrance to the Canadian National Park.

On the return, some of the members will pass through Yellowstone Park and others will take the Grand Canyon trip. The Yellowstone party arrives home July 2 and the Grand Canyon tourists June 25.

PLAN ALASKAN TRIP.

Dr. L. C. Kingsbury, illustrious potentate of Sphinx Temple, Hartford, Conn., has planned a delegation to Alaska. The party crossed the country via the southern route and will return home over the Canadian Rockies.

Another important delegation at the hotel is Melba Temple of Springfield, Mass., in charge of illustrious Potentate Fred C. Smith. This is one of the largest parties registered at the Oakland hotel.

Belknap Temple of Concord, N. H., is represented by B. P. Dunker.

Greenbacks Galore and Snakes With Temples

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Medinah Temple of Chicago is the largest delegation to reach San Francisco. It came in five special trains, which will be parked along the Embarcadero. While here the trains will be fitted up with telephone connections and other conveniences, so that the Shriners and their ladies will be just as comfortable as in any hotel.

Giving away greenbacks is a highly interesting stunt that the Shriners of Medinah Temple will advise the crowds with this week. Many of these greenbacks are of high denomination and, around the Bank of Medinah Gulch, just what these greenbacks will be redeemed for has not been explained.

W. H. Wade, who is more than six feet tall, is the potentate of this temple. The delegation also boasts of a bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Wade, who will be married just before starting west.

For wildness and wooliness, Al Zaribah Temple of Phoenix, Arizona, undoubtedly takes first prize. Among the big delegations, Al Zaribah Temple of Phoenix was brought along on its special train, to be used in a Moqui Indian ceremony, which will take place some time during the convention. The Arizona delegation is also decorated with designs to represent cactus and Gila monsters.

The steamer Yale brought in Al Malakiah Temple of Los Angeles, 400 strong. Besides some members of the Arabia patrol of Houston, Texas, the rest of the Arabians came in yesterday on the Harvard.

Ben Hur Temple of Austin, Texas, was another southern arrival. Nile Temple, represented by 400 pilgrims, headed by Potentate Hugh H. Caldwell, former mayor of the city, arrived today from Seattle. Two South Dakota temples arriving were Naja of Deadwood and El Riad of Sioux Falls. The latter had a ten-year-old mascot, Mary Odel.

As each temple arrived at the Ferry building or at the Third and Townsend street station, it was met by members of Islam Temple, acting as a reception committee. The Islamites were dressed in blue coats, white serge trousers, white shoes and wore red fezes, a somewhat unusual sight to the visitors.

Ten far western temples are assisting Islam Temple in looking after the comforts and wants of the incoming Shriners. These temples are: James of Oakland, Al Malakiah of Los Angeles, Al Bahr of San Diego, Al Kader of Portland, Oregon, Nile of Seattle, Afrit of Tacoma, El Kulluf of Spokane, El Zaribah of Phoenix and Kerak of Reno. Among others arriving were: Bedouin of Muskogee, Oklahoma and Mirza of Pittsburgh, Kansas.

POTENTATE CUTTS ARRIVES IN S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Attended by the consolidated bands and patrols of Alce Temple of Savannah and Al Sijah Temple of Macao, Ernest Allen Cutts, potentate of the Shrine, arrived in San Francisco yesterday to preside at the convention.

The imperial potentate arrived on a special train, and his entourage of the party included Robert C. Hubert, potentate of Alce Temple; C. A. McAllister, potentate of Al Sijah Temple; Harry B. Roberts and F. E. Fletcher, past potentates of Egypt Temple of Tampa, Fla.; Judge Davis Freeman and Robert J. Travis, past potentates of Alce Temple, all also imperial representatives, and Robert E. Banks, recorder of Alce Temple.

The joint escort was in charge of Robert F. Killey.

Imperial Potentate Cutts is a cotton merchant of Savannah and was potentate of Alce Temple for 14 years. Since achieving his present high position he has visited many temples, traveled more than 76,000 miles and has made addresses to more than 200,000 Shriners.

who is making the trip, serve a dual purpose. Bunker is visiting the west for the first time as a delegate to the Shrine convention and is accompanied by his wife on another honeymoon trip in celebration of their eleventh wedding anniversary.

300 L. A. Shriners Reach Berkeley

BERKELEY, June 12.—Three hundred members of the Los Angeles Shrine, of Los Angeles, arrived in Berkeley by boat, train and auto today to make the college city their headquarters for the big convention in San Francisco. The Shriners and their families will be domiciled at the Hotel Whitecourt. Accompanying members of the Los Angeles temple was their drill team, which will give exhibitions in the big parade in San Francisco tomorrow. Louis M. Cole is potentate of the southern temple and supervised arrangements for the housing of his party.

Torch Is Piled to Erin Country Homes

BELFAST, June 12.—(By International News Service.)—This city was comparatively quiet over the week-end but a reign of terror was reported today from County Westmeath in Leinster province. Incendiaries were active and a number of country houses were burned. In Mullingar many shops belonging to Protestants were wrecked.

LONDON, June 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—The articles of the new Irish constitution have been revised so satisfactorily, the Evening Star asserts today, that Arthur Griffith will return to Dublin with them tonight. It adds that Colonial Secretary Churchill may postpone his statement in the house of commons until tomorrow that announcement of the agreement may be made simultaneously in London and Dublin.

SHRINE FOUND IN HOSPITAL FOR LITTLE CRIPPLES

Aid for Unfortunate Children in Every State Is Aim of Nobles.

By GEORGIA G. BORDWELL.

Traveling across the mythical hot sands for fifty years, as they have done in the search for pleasure, the Shriners have, like other dwellers in the desert, beheld a vision—and that vision, according to Bishop Frederic Keator, is the hospital for crippled children, five of which are now under way in America.

"This is the shrine," said Bishop Keator last night at the St. Francis hotel, where other representatives to the Imperial Council, he is domiciled. "For years the Shrine has been thought by laymen to be given over to 'play' and 'fun' by the bishop, but now we have seen a veritable shrine into which we are traveling, and that is the construction of a hospital in every state for the crippled and twisted bodies who are suffering from the hot sands of life."

Frederic Keator, Bishop of Tacoma, Wash., is one of the seven trustees of the Shriners' Hospitals for Crippled Children which will receive only children whose parents or guardians are not able to pay for treatment. The hospitals are race, creed or color. It is estimated that in America there are 400,000 such children who, at the present time cannot be helped except sporadic charity.

WOMEN MAY AID WORK.

When asked whether women would have any part in the direction of these hospitals, Bishop Keator said that in each city where a hospital is located a committee of governors from the local temple will be appointed by the trustees, and that it is probable that two women will be appointed upon each board.

A hospital for children, without the protecting influence of women in its management, is unthinkable," declared Bishop Keator, "and so at last the women who have hitherto had no part in the Shrine except to accompany their gorgeously-arranged husbands to the yearly councils, will have an opportunity for success."

This opportunity is being eagerly sought by the wives of not only the representatives to the Imperial Council, but by the women members of more Nobles from all over the country.

Mrs. Ernest A. Cutts, wife of the imperial potentate, expressed her ideas of women's part in the Shrine activities last night in an interview. Since achieving her part of the great new hospital program seems to echo in the conversation of all the women.

Mrs. Cutts, who confessed herself to be a sheltered home woman who never had been interviewed in her life and who "hadn't a thing in the world to say," finally "said a mouthful," as they say, in the street language down in her part of the South.

FAIR SEX STAND TOLD.

"We have never had any part in the Shrine except go along once a year—and sometimes stay at home—but now I do not see how the men are going to keep us out of partly running their wonderful hospitals. We have not been officially asked to assist in the management, but I think that we can't help our forming committees to do hospital work after the completion of the buildings," Mrs. Cutts spoke of the hospital for crippled children maintained in Atlanta, Ga., by the Order of Scottish Rite, after which the new Shrine hospitals are being patterned. There, she said, the wives of the Masons have formed themselves into groups who keep a watchful eye on every department and that the hospital is indeed a great success.

As for the hospital in San Francisco, now being built on Nineteenth avenue, between Moraga and Lawton streets, which will be the first institution to be in operation, Mrs. Ira W. Coburn, wife of Isham potentate, said that she couldn't imagine the wives of Islam keeping their hands off the management—if not official, then unofficial.

Two Bands Furnish Music for Rodeo

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Al Bahr Temple of San Diego was a feature of the opening of the Shriners' Rodeo at Ewing Field this afternoon. Music was also provided by Cassius's military band.

The rodeo, which it is promised, will be one of the best of its kind ever presented in California, will continue throughout the entire week, including Sunday, according to Director-General H. D. ("Jack") Hart.

NURSES WILL MEET.

The annual meeting of the Alameda County Nurses' Association will be held on Wednesday night in the Young Women's Christian Association building. Election of officers will take place. The complete report of the card party at the home of Mrs. Mark Reagan for the benefit of the clubhouse building fund will be presented.

S. F. Girl Accuses Man of Assault

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Charged with an attack upon a young woman whom he had escorted on an automobile ride and afterward lured to a lonely garage, Ralph Prouty, a machinist, was arrested by the police early today.

The girl is Miss Hazel Seton, a clerk, 22 years old, of 1420 Polk street. With her hair disarranged and her clothing torn, she rushed from the interior of a garage at 1461 Pine street and told her experiences to two police officers. She was conveyed to the Central Emergency hospital. The police took Prouty into custody at his home, 1239 Polk street.

TWO SCORE MEET DEATH AS GALE HITS NEW YORK

many of them submerged. Because of this, police, life savers and rescue parties gave up efforts to console frantic relatives and friends and abandoned all patrols on the beach to devote their work exclusively to rescue.

The story of most of the thrilling rescues will never be told. Mrs. Mary Petzold was in a tiny pleasure craft with six other persons when the gale swooped down upon them. The boat tipped and the passengers were tossed into the waves and Agnes Kohler, aged three, was carried on the crest of a huge curl some distance from the sinking craft.

Mrs. Petzold, almost strangled by the brine and partially blinded by the beating hail, swam toward the sinking child and grasped her. Both perished.

A crowd of pleasure seekers was dancing in the dining room of the Red Lion Inn on the Boston Post road near the Mamaronock when the storm broke.

There was a flash of lightning, accompanied by a gust of wind. Five trees were uprooted. One was blown against the chimney, which collapsed, caving in the roof and showering the dancers with bricks.

A tree crashed through the wall of the Inn and killed Mrs. B. A. Wanna and her daughter, Rose. Mrs. Sarah Mirkin, sister-in-law, was injured.

SEARCH FOR MISSING.

NEW YORK, June 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Daybreak this morning found hundreds of parents, children and relatives still standing vigil at the docks at City Island, awaiting the arrival of police boats which during the hours of darkness had searched the waters of Long Island Sound for additional victims of yesterday's terrific storm. Powerful searchlights played over the water as the ghastly quest went on, but the swift tide apparently had borne away the bodies not recovered last night and early today the police reported that the list of known dead had not been augmented.

More than fifty persons were thought to have lost their lives and upward of 100 were injured in the tempest, which roared out of the hills of Northern New Jersey, beat the bathing pavilions and the beach sweep across New York City and then seemed to center its wild energy on City Island and vicinity.

Thousands of rowboats and launches dotted the sound off City Island just before the breaking of the storm; when it had passed the water was strewn with overturned craft and the buildings on shore resembled a battle-torn village in No Man's Land. Many parties hurrying for safety saw people struggling in the water, but dared not stop for fear of capsizing their own craft. The rescue work started immediately, but darkness and the panic-stricken crowds hindered the labors of the volunteer life-savers.

The bodies of seven canoeists caught in Long Island Sound off City Island at the heights of the storm were washed ashore after midnight.

Miss Edna Smith, 17, walking with a companion along the Reservoir road at Ossining, was blown into the water and drowned.

Charles Emerson, New Rochelle clothing manufacturer, was rowing down the bay with his wife and three children when the storm broke. He managed to row to shore, then died from a heart attack.

A tree fell across a party of motorists seeking shelter on the Brookville road, Long Island, killing Harry Halleran of Oyster Bay and seriously injuring his three male companions.

Unable to reach shore in the stiff wind, Jack Lowenthal, 20, was drowned while swimming in East river.

TROLLEY CAR STRUCK.

Lightning struck a Brooklyn trolley car and half a dozen passengers were stunned and thrown to the floor. Lightning also struck a barn in Flushing and ten horses were burned to death.

Coney Island, where a throng of 500,000 had gathered, including 100,000 bathers, fortunately received only the tail-end of the storm. Nevertheless, the confusion at the resort was intense when the startled crowds rushed for shelter.

It is estimated by Lieutenant Joseph Reilly of the City Island detectives that no fewer than ten thousand persons were fishing when the storm broke. After it had passed and the sky cleared the waters of Pelham bay and Long Island sound were dotted with overturned rowboats, launches, canoes and yachts.

All communication by telephone with the island was cut off by the razing of wires and telephone poles and this hampered the police. They improvised a morgue in the bathing pavilions and as rapidly as the bodies were recovered they were taken there for identification.

Death Takes Heavy Toll In N. Y. Storm

(By International News Service) NEW YORK, June 12.—The known dead from the storm in the metropolitan area is listed today as follows:

- 29 drowned.
- 7 killed in Ferris wheel crash.
- 6 killed by uprooted trees.
- 2 killed by fallen live wires.
- 1 died of heart failure trying to save family in rowboat.

Three Minute Tales

Curly's rope whirling around his head and the homesteader blessed her as she made no sign to betray his presence. The rope was Curly's sole weapon, and Jackson was armed.

"The noose settling over Jackson's head ended the argument. 'Beat it!' yelled Curly to a girl who needed no encouragement, as he clutched his end of the rope and watched her race off toward town.

"Our places are pretty far apart," said Curly as he accompanied the girl back to the ranch that was hers for good. The suggestion in the sentence was not lost on the girl.

"But it is not in the contract," Miss Orpuit answered, "that yours has to be lived on."

So they rode on together to the home of the person.

DRAFT EVADER BERGDOLL NAME IN SWINDLE AD.

PORTLAND, Ore., June 12.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, wealthy draft evader, now vacationing in Switzerland, while absent from this country in the past, apparently is present in the spirit.

An advertisement in the personal column of newspapers carried the advertisement:

"Paffenbarger & Bergdoll. Send donations in amounts of $5 and up. A. Gerald Paffenbarger and Cleveland Bergdoll. Remit all donations to A. Gerald Paffenbarger."

The address of a Washington street hotel was given in the advertisement. Police decided to investigate. Paffenbarger was captured after a running gun fight with the police. Attempts to elicit from him just what phase of Ponish finance he was directing met the polite suggestion that the force could have three guesses.

Three Dead Others Missing in Ohio

NEVARK, O., June 12.—Three persons are known to be dead, thirteen others are seriously injured and others are believed drowned in the waters of Buckeye Lake, a summer resort near here, while the bodies of five others are thought to be buried beneath the wreckage of fifty cottages, as the result of a tornado which swept the lake and surrounding territory late yesterday afternoon, causing a loss of $100,000.

Manila Coalition Realigns Control

MANILA, P. I., June 12.—(By International News Service.)—By a proposed coalition of the Collectivists and the Democrats, former Speaker Osmena, elected to the Philippine senate, loses control of the legislature and the vice-presidency of the council of state which he has held eight years. In the proposed coalition the Democrats are to be the most powerful element, although the plan really embraces the fusion and re-election of Manuel Quezon, president of the senate.

The Democrats believe in independence but do not favor missions to Washington, believing the United States will keep whatever pledges have been made.

It is understood that a proposal for self-government, with permanent American sovereignty, will be considered as soon as conditions are favorable to all concerned.

NATIONAL BALLOT ON CHILD LABOR, LYNCHING; BORAH

Senator Proposes Referendum on Constitutional Amendments.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The American people should be given the opportunity, by submission of a constitutional amendment, Senator Borah (Rep., Idaho), declared in a letter made public last night, to decide whether they desire to "wipe out State lines" and give Congress power to pass child labor, anti-lynching and similar laws dealing with State affairs.

"Year after year Congress is lashed into passing laws which are manifestly unconstitutional," said Senator Borah in a letter on the anti-lynching bill, "and it has come to be a settled principle apparently that Congress should disregard the constitution alone to protect it. To my mind such a rule is so utterly shameful, so utterly intolerable that it is something that it should be even spasmodically urged."

That he would oppose a constitutional change was indicated by Senator Borah, who argued that Congress should not be placed in a position "where it is constantly and chronically usurping power" of the States.

Wife of Prominent Rancher Says She Has Found Tanlac to be a Perfectly Grand Medicine—Always Brings Results.

"I believe in passing on to others the good things that come our way, and for that reason I am glad to tell my experience with Tanlac," said Mrs. R. L. Holleman, 516 N. Main street, Artesia, Cal., wife of a prominent ranch owner.

"My first experience with Tanlac was when I had become greatly run down from caring for members of my family who had the influenza, but Tanlac built me up, restored my appetite, enabled me to get sound and refreshing sleep and brought back my strength. I am now in the best of health, but once or twice since then I've had attacks of nervousness, when I was unable to sleep, and suffered a great deal. In each case I was simply delighted with the way Tanlac would, in just a few days, put me back in splendid condition. I have also recommended Tanlac to my friends in several cases, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

Labor Must Enter Politics Says Federation Report

CINCINNATI, O., June 12.—The record of organized labor's accomplishment in "a year of unusual crisis and unusual industrial depression" was laid before the forty-second annual convention of the American Federation of Labor today in the report of the Federation's executive council.

The report declared that American labor during the year not only suffered from the widespread unemployment that existed but was beset by "opponents" more active and determined than ever.

In addition to strictures on the conduct of employer in numerous cases, the report added explicit and pointed criticism of Congress and of some state legislative bodies, declaring such branches of the government to be "succumbing to a wave of reaction." Fault was found with the action of some courts, including the supreme court, and with what was described as President Harding's "proposal to regulate trade unions."

OUTLOOK FOR YEAR.

It is with no little satisfaction in view of these circumstances, the report on the other hand declared, "that we are able to lay before the convention a record of achievement, a report of solidarity, a report of constructive planning, and a report that can only inadequately portray the militant spirit with which our movement has come through the year."

"The audacity of those who have made it their business to attack in every possible manner the organizations of the workers has had no parallel in our country. What our movement has been compelled to meet has been a condition in which the predatory powers have sought to beat down all resistance in every quarter and to enrich themselves at the expense of the whole people. No experience has testified as eloquently to the fundamental soundness of our organizations and to the manner in which they serve the workers. We shall fight with a greater confidence because of the record that has been made."

STRUGGLE WITH EMPLOYERS.

The report declared that in the direct labor field "workers in a number of industries have been compelled to resort to cessation of work" because "organized employers" were "unwilling to meet workers in conference for negotiations."

The most important instance of this policy was declared to be the case of the existing coal mine strike, although troubles in the textile, garment, printing, granite, and packing house industries also were cited.

"The organized mine owners repudiated their agreement with the United Mine Workers of America," the report said, "compelling the mine workers to go on strike. Back-gate violation of agreements. The contest going on among employers and the printing trades union involved a contemptuous disregard of the law and a flagrant violation of an agreement by employers and their associations."

COURTS CRITICIZED.

Turning next to courts, the executive council protested "most emphatically against such unjust and inhumane decisions" as that of the supreme court voiding the act intended to abolish child labor in the United States. Congress "by this decision, must keep its hands off when the health and life and well-being of the nation's children are concerned," the report asserted, adding that the "Supreme Court of today is far more legalistic and less humane in its attitude and temperament than was the supreme court of 1918."

"The year is marked particularly with an increasing hostility of the judiciary toward the effort of wage earners to prevent deterioration of their standards of life and labor," the report continued, "and we recommended that an appeal be made to that higher court of public judgment."

WEEDS GROW ON CONFUCIUS TOMB; GUARDS QUARREL

Chinese Newspapers Stirred by Dispute Over Funds to Preserve Shrine.

PEKING, June 12.—Almost 25 centuries have passed since Confucius died at Chufou, Shantung province. Yet he is today the subject of news items on the front pages of Chinese newspapers. Recently two brothers engaged in a public quarrel over the expenses of the upkeep of Confucius' tomb.

K'ung Ling-hsi, who is poor, receives from the government $2000 annually to guard and preserve the Chinese sage's tomb erected on the outskirts of Chufou in 479 B.C. K'ung asserts that the allowance is sufficient and that since the population of Chufou is made up almost exclusively of Confucius' descendants the family ought to provide ample funds. He has appealed especially to his younger brother, who is the guardian of Duke K'ung, T'ch'eng, reputed to be the 77th direct descendant of Confucius, is wealthy. But the younger brother maintains he is the custodian of the fortune of the two-year-old Duke and is therefore unable to assign funds. Meanwhile weeds are said to be growing on Confucius' tomb and the soldiers guarding it are working on half pay. The controversy in the Chinese newspapers is based on speculation as to what Confucius himself would think of it were he living.

Inside the city walls where one-third of the city is occupied with memorials of the sage the memory of Confucius is kept bright, because here the tourists and pilgrims tread. But the stone monument rising from the mound outside the city walls is growing over the inscription, "Tomb of the all-accomplished and most saintly Prince."

Japanese School Boys Suspended

KYOTO, Japan, May 12.—(By Mail).—The boys of the High school of Kyoto who passed a vote of "Want of Confidence" in the principal were suspended for a week. This "drastic step," as the Japanese papers describe the action of the school authorities, is unusual in the frequent "strikes" of school boys in Japan, they usually being settled by compromise in which the boys generally secure the enforcement of some of their demands.

This non-course vote in Kyoto was based on the alleged "despotism" of the principal in discharging old professors. As a conference between the principal and the scholars could not come to an agreement, the suspension of the boys was decided upon.

FRENCH, GERMANS IN PEACE MEET

BERLIN, June 12 (By the Associated Press).—"War upon war," was the recurring motive of the speeches delivered by French and German political and academic leaders yesterday before a meeting convened by German pacifists for the purpose of discussing a Franco-German rapprochement.

The French delegates assured the German auditors that they represented the sentiments of the masses of the French people, who fervently believed it imperative that the gulf now separating the two nations must be bridged, if European civilization was to be saved.

The German speakers assured the French visitors that the German people were actuated by a sincere desire to fulfill the reparations demands, but insisted upon assurance that their contributions would go into the rebuilding of Europe and would not be diverted into the furtherance of foreign imperialism.

PLUNGE THROUGH BRIDGE.—TACOMA, Wash., June 12.—Harold and Resnald Hehn and a woman whose name was not given narrowly escaped drowning last night, when a heavily-laden truck on which they were riding crashed through a bridge into 15 feet of water at Olalla, Wash., near here.

Luncheon and Bridge at Fairmont

Baskets of pink snap dragons and delphinium and Russell roses with streamers of delf blue ribbon and tulle adorned the luncheon table Saturday afternoon at which the Misses Elvira Tiernan, Anita Purcell and Miriam Mendizabal presided as hostesses for forty guests at the Hotel Fairmont, the occasion being a luncheon and bridge in honor of Miss Geraldine Traphagen, whose marriage to Arthur Leydecker will take place Wednesday evening at the Oliver G. Traphagen home in Alameda.

It was the last of a round of smart affairs for the bride-elect, whose engagement days have been filled with informal affairs since the announcement a few months ago. Miss Elvira Tiernan will be maid of honor and Theodore Leydecker best man at his brother's wedding.

Among those for whom places were set were:

Mesdames Albert L. Griffin, A. Anderson, Oliver G. Traphagen, Clement Rowlands, Nathaniel Neal, Howard Weaver, William Druske, Philip Holden, Theodore Leydecker, I. J. Mendizabal, M. E. Purcell, Jocelyn Bates, George Reynolds, O'Connor, William Young, Willard Griffin.

Misses Geraldine Traphagen, Dora Duveneck, Betty Cole, Margaret Harrod, Edith Meyers, Alice Culver, Marian Lindeman, Marion Murphy, Adeline Keller, Carrie Miller, Helen McCarthy, Fay Boyden, Elsa Duveneck, Helen Rounds, Margaret Cole, Genevieve Morris, Beatrice Mueller, Mabelle Williams, Marjorie Stanley, Helen Thym, Daisy Miller, Florence McCarthy, Mildred Meyers and others.

A smart affair of Saturday afternoon was the musical tea given by Miss Consuela Osgood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Osgood of Monte Vista avenue. About forty of the younger set but rested in music were guests. Miss Osgood contemplates continuing her study of vocal music abroad. She is at present studying with Mrs. Charles Williams Cannan of San Francisco and Professor C. Henrik Randall of that city.

Mrs. Osgood assisted her daughter in receiving.

Over the week end Miss Margaret Stewart, daughter of Mrs. John Stewart of Berkeley, and Miss Dexter Harding of the college city were guests at the Chi Omega chapter house in Stanford. They motored down to attend the grand opera.

A pretty wedding took place Thursday at the parsonage of the Trinity Lutheran church, when Rolf Miller and Eleanor Olson, both of East Oakland, were married. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jansen were attendants. Rev. O. E. Brandrud performed the ceremony.

The newlyweds left yesterday morning for a wedding trip to Yosemite Valley. Upon their return they will reside in Oakland.

Mrs. Wallace Alexander has left for Santa Barbara for a ten-day sojourn. Mrs. Alexander is an enthusiastic tennis player and will dea dozen of her intimate friends to share her hospitality.

Mrs. Constance Van Brunt Lynch will entertain Tuesday at a bridge tea in honor of Miss Harriet Holingshead, an eastern girl who is the house guest of Miss Florence Woolsey of Berkeley. Mrs. Lynch will entertain at her home in Alameda.

Many delightful luncheon parties have been given during the week at the Aladdin Studio Tiffin Room. Tuesday Mrs. Walter Varney entertained a number of her friends, those partaking of her hospitality being the Mesdames Fred Harriman, Grant Smith, Frank Stone, Vivian Gordon, John Newbegin and the Misses Thelma Warren and Maud Varney.

Wednesday Mrs. N. Bonnett entertained the Mesdames M. Blair, E. Quinn and W. Anderson, and Miss N. Blair.

Miss Jean Fletcher will be hostess Saturday afternoon at tea at the Palace in honor of Miss Claire Hogan, who will leave for Europe in the late summer. Miss Hogan will accompany her father, Thomas P. Hogan, Sr., and her brother Charles on the trip.

COUNTRY CLUB LUNCHEON WEDNESDAY.—Mrs. Oliver Haslett and Mrs. William R. Van Brunt of Alameda will be joint hostesses Wednesday at an elaborate luncheon at the Sequoyah Country Club in honor of Mrs. Harold Adams, who is the guest of Mrs. Harvey Roy of Grand street, Alameda, from the east. Bridge will be the later diversion.

Mrs. Harold Wilcox Beard will entertain guests at luncheon June 17 at the Sequoyah Country Club.

Strikers May Keep Funds in Canada

CHICAGO, June 12.—While additional wage cuts hung over the heads of 350,000 more employees and awaited only formal release by the Railroad Labor Board to slash another $40,000,000 from the pay rolls of the carriers, it was rumored today that any rail strike growing out of present threats may be directed and financed from Canada, as a means of evading the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court holding unions liable for damages caused by their members.

Leaders of the rail unions said to be contemplating the move viewed the establishment of Canadian headquarters as legitimate in view of conditions caused by the Supreme Court opinion, because the unions are international organizations. Financial penalties in case of a walkout could thus be averted, it was said.

The expected new wage reduction order will increase the total cut from railway workers' wages to approximately $150,000,000 a year.

RUSSIA NEEDS ALIEN CAPITAL, AVERS HOOVER

Investment Rather Than Trade Problem Facing
U. S. Business Men.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Investment rather than trade is the important problem confronting American business men with respect to Russia, Secretary Hoover declared last night in a statement describing the Russian foreign trade situation.

"Without a large investment of foreign capital as a means of restoring production," Hoover said, "the prospects are that at least for some years to come, there will be even less opportunity to sell goods to Russia than in 1921, for, with the exhaustion of the gold reserve, her means of payments will shrink to a minimum. The feasibility of investing capital in Russia depends essentially on the policy of the bolshevik government and on the general internal situation, and not in any important degree upon action of foreign governments."

Some misunderstanding exists, the secretary asserted, as to the practical character of the trade agreements with Russia by foreign governments, there being nothing in the trade treaties between Russia and England, Germany, Italy and other countries, enabling trade with private individuals in Russia.

Russia's trade today, he declared, consists of importing goods and paying out gold from the imperial reserve as the country cannot pay for commodities with commodities.

Japanese Become Enthusiastic Golfers

TOKYO, May 12.—(By mail).—The Japanese are taking to golf with enthusiasm and the nine hole course situated in an ideal spot, seven miles from Tokyo, is crowded morning and afternoon. There are also courses near the other cities of Japan, and the country hotels are also providing for their guests in this respect.

The Japanese of Tokyo, however, have now undertaken a more ambitious scheme and in connection with a country club which is being built here, Tokyo and Yokohama are laying out an eighteen hole course on 112 acres of land. The plans of the club house, which will be the finest in the country, are from America.

STARLIGHT

Virginia Fairfax, daughter of the first family of Virginia, rebels against the patriarchal rule of her grandfather, and, lured by film-making, runs away to become a motion picture actress. Virginia found herself given a very important place in the Stratton picture. Kitty Dalton, friend, warned Virginia against falling in love with Stratton. Kitty confessed her love for John Storm, the minister. She ran at the attitude of the world, which condemns her and condemns Theodore Stratton for identical deeds. Maud Sanson quarreled with Theodore Stratton. She charges him with being in love with Virginia. Kitty Dalton tells of her step-mother's tragic death on the stage and of her meeting Theodore. Following her mother's death, Kitty doubled with Theodore. He refused. He attacked her, falling upon his own knife, which she had snatched up from a table.

COMPARING NOTES.

"Oh, I am sorry you recognized him, Kitty!" I exclaimed when she told me of her meeting with Julian Thornbyke, the man who had wronged her.

"It wouldn't have made any difference. He would get me just the same." Kitty spoke with a solemnity that frightened me. I couldn't understand.

"What do you mean by that, Kitty?"

"That I might just as well go back. There is no use of my trying to escape him. I feel doomed."

"Why don't you confide in John Storm and ask his help?"

"Oh, Virgie, I couldn't. He never would understand as you do."

"Perhaps she would understand better, Kitty. He has had lots more worldly experience than I. He is a man."

He must know a man's nature better than I, and you say he is sympathizing with me, Virgie," she pleaded.

"Oh, my dear, the story would lose half its value if another told John for you. It is your story and if I am not mistaken, it is you in whom John Storm is interested."

You should tell him. It is not that I want to avoid something disagreeable, Kitty, but because I think you will be much more effective than anyone else could be."

"Well, I will try. What time are we going to leave in the morning?"

"Whenever you are ready."

"I think—" Kitty sidled up to me shyly and, with her cheek against mine, whispered: "I think I would like to go to his church."

I suppressed an exclamation and managed to say calmly:

"All right. We will get up early and drive directly to his church. Is John Storm going back to Riverside tonight?"

"He has already gone. He went by train. But what happened to you, my dear, today? I have been so full of my own troubles that I have hardly thought about you."

You will forgive me, won't you?"

"There is nothing to forgive. I guess the day went along as usual. I felt my voice grow flat and toneless as I spoke."

"You are not telling me all," Kitty responded quickly, recognizing unspoken words in the tone of my voice. But, sympathetic as she was, I could not tell her that Theodore Stratton had told me he loved me and then, because he was jealous, he had become cold and almost a stranger all within the six hours we had been working."

The next day broke radiantly in a perfect burst of color all over the sky. I had not slept well, and I was sure that Kitty suffered likewise.

I arose first and Kitty soon followed. "Morning, Virgie! I'll give you the bathroom while I fix a little breakfast for us." It was then that I realized that I could not feel hungry and had had no dinner the night before.

I looked at Kitty and decided that she, too, had a lean and hungry look. "I'm hungry, Kitty. I didn't have my dinner last night."

"Neither did I, Virgie. There are plenty of eggs, strawberries and real cream. We'll have a regular feast. Get into your tub quickly."

After a cold bath I could not feel unhappy. Again I felt how dependent one's mind; one's heart and one's spirit—the things, one calls one's soul—is upon the material body. And I thought more about it as I saw Kitty begin to perk up as she ate her strawberries and drank her second cup of coffee, while I buttered a third piece of toast for her from off the electric stove placed between us on the table.

"And now for my bath!" exclaimed Kitty.

"So soon after eating? Aunt Virginia would insist that you would make yourself ill."

"Oh, I am not going to take a cold bath, and I haven't time for a very hot one, so I'll get no particular shock. You put the dishes away and by the time you have finished I will have started to dress with you."

"Didn't Theodore Stratton ask you to go to dinner last night?" Kitty spoke casually as she coquetishly accentuated the color and contour of her mouth.

"He did not."

"Why, what is the matter, is your doll stuffed with sawdust?" I guess I haven't any doll."

"Didn't the picture go off well?"

"Beautifully! The director said that he had never seen two people register love as did Theodore Stratton and I and no person register jealousy as did Maud Sanson."

"Oh, that's it, is it? Maud is

Miles That's What You're Buying

It's the cost of your mileage that determines your tire economy, not the price of the tires. It's the extra thousands of miles that make Firestone Cords the choice of taxicab operators and other big mileage consumers.

You can't buy mileage today cheaper than Firestone is selling it—regardless of what you pay to begin with.

What will give the Most Miles per Dollar determines the processes and methods Firestone employs. For instance, Firestone Cords are built oversize, cured on air bags and the cords gum-dipped—because these processes add thousands of miles to tire service.

Most tire makers find such operations too difficult and costly from a manufacturing standpoint, but Firestone engineers found the successful and practical way to employ them.

The result is that Firestone Cords are not only outstripping all previous mileage records this year, but the cost to the user is the lowest in history.

RICKENBACKER'S PLANE WRECKED; TRIP ABANDONED

Lightning Blamed for Disaster That Ends Ace's Flight; Other Mishaps.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
LEASD WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

OMAHA, June 12.—Eddie Rickenbacker's around-the-country flight ended abruptly early yesterday when his large all-metal plane crashed while attempting to take off from the air mail field here for Denver. None of the Rickenbacker party was injured.

The plane took off the local field and when only a few feet in the air the engine stalled, and the propeller and landing gear were demolished, and the plane so severely damaged that Rickenbacker was forced to abandon the contemplated 15,000 mile flight around the country for the purpose of making an industrial and aeronautical survey of the United States.

Rickenbacker, who carried a message from President Harding for the Shriners' convention at San Francisco, left this morning for that city by rail to deliver the message.

LIGHTNING BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT.
In an official statement, Rickenbacker attributed the cause of the accident to the lightning which struck the plane at Detroit last Thursday.

"In through with commercial aviation for the time being," Rickenbacker said. "There is not a plane in the United States fitted to make such a long tour. The plane we were flying was the nearest approach and it fell short."

The accident to the huge plane was the third since it was struck by lightning at Detroit. After the party left Detroit the plane was forced down at Ypsilanti, Mich., and then again near Dexter, Iowa, Friday afternoon.

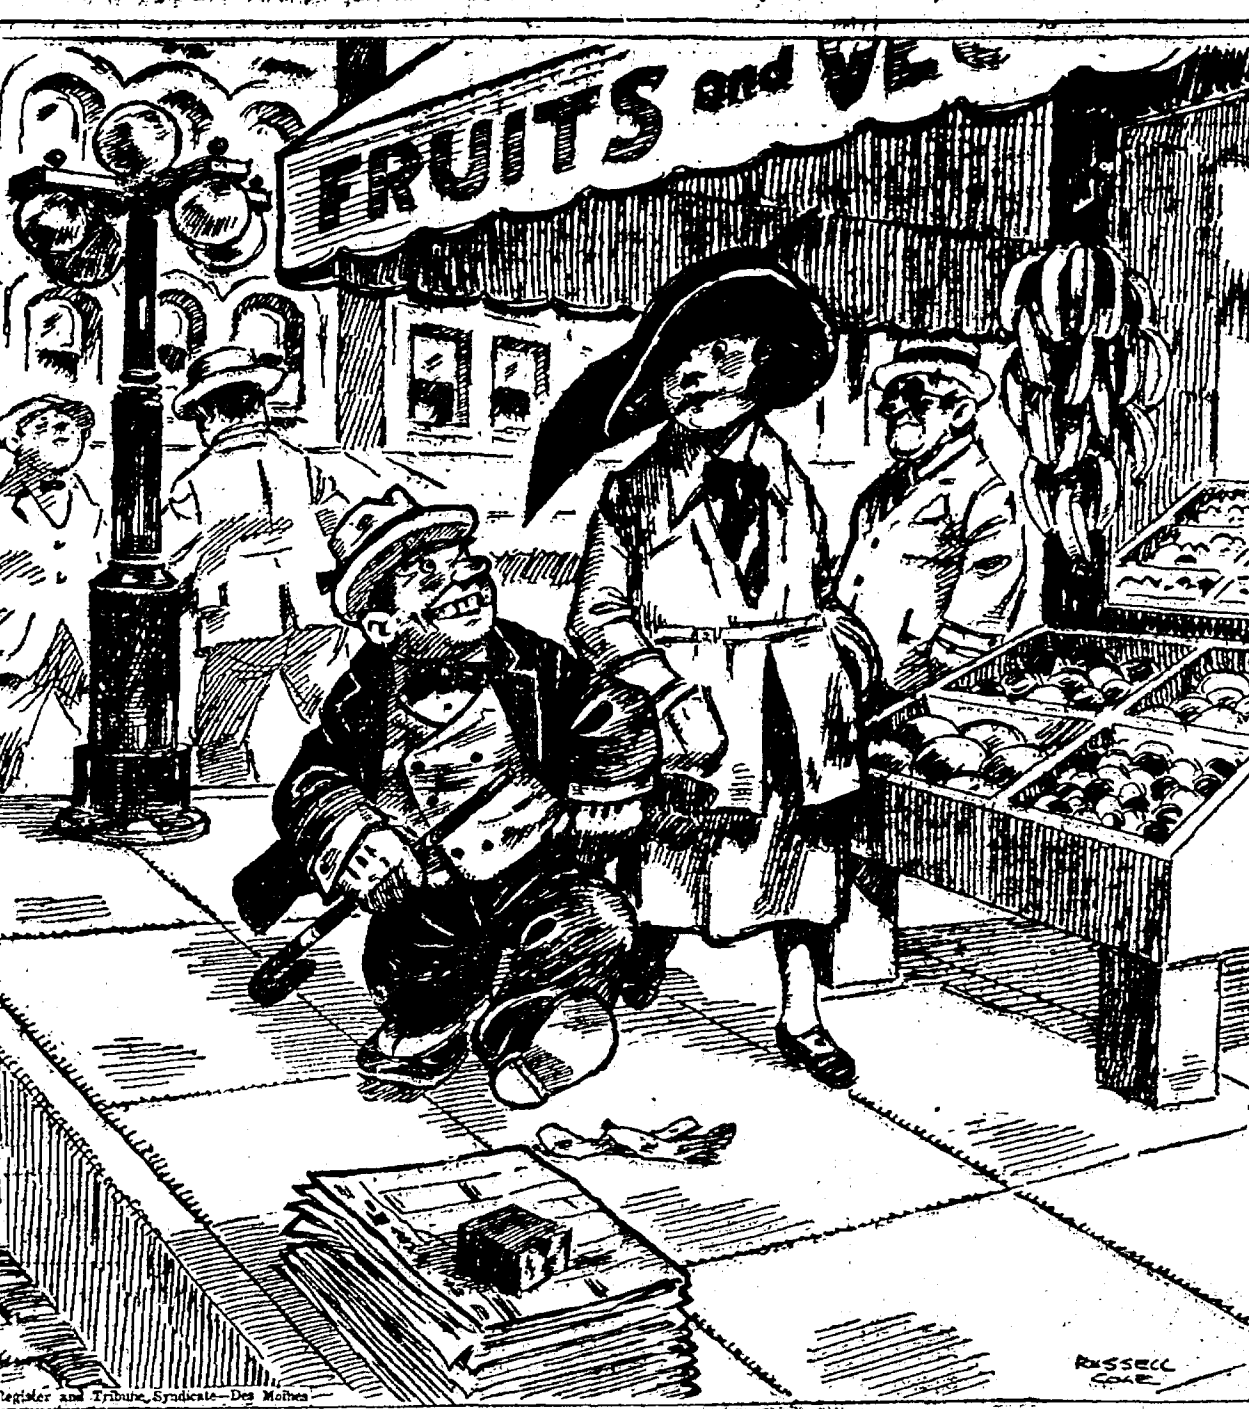

Eddie Stinson, holder of the world's endurance flying record, who was piloting the ship at the time of the crash this morning, Steve Hannigan of New York and Sam Blair of Chicago, newspaper men, and Theodore Livingston, mechanic, were the members of the Rickenbacker party.

EDITOR AND PILOT INJURED IN FALL.

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—Wm. F. McKay, editor of the Suburban Citizen, at Miramonte, near here, and Bill Valentine, pilot, were seriously injured yesterday when an airplane in which they were riding fell at Ball Station, another suburb. Hugh Bingham, also an occupant of the plane, escaped with slight injuries.

The airplane collided with a telephone pole while McKay and

Just Name This Cartoon! It Is Easy and Oakland Tribune Offers $10 for Best Title

Just name the cartoon. For the best title, the one most apt, the cleverest or most fitting. The OAKLAND TRIBUNE will pay $10 each week. The rules are simple, as follows: The titles must be written on a postcard and addressed to Title Editor, OAKLAND TRIBUNE. Titles must not exceed twelve words in length.

They must reach The OAKLAND TRIBUNE by Thursday night following the Monday the picture is published. One person may send in as many titles as he wishes, but only two on one postcard. Postcards must not be enclosed in envelopes. Letters will not be eligible. Postcards must bear only the title and the name and address and no message whatsoever. Winners will be announced each Sunday.

Bingham was throwing out handbills advertising a real estate development. Both McKay and Valentine suffered broken bones and internal injuries.

LIEUT. ALDORTH IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 12.—Chances for the recovery of Lieutenant Richard T. Aldworth of Los Angeles, who suffered a fractured skull and lacerations about the body when the airplane he was piloting crashed to earth at Old Camp Hancock here yesterday, were brighter this morning, although his condition still was serious.

Major P. E. H. Brainard, who was carried as a passenger, received a fractured arm and cuts about the face when the plane fell. The accident was attributed to engine trouble.

OLD MAN, BRIDE KILLED IN FALL.

CHICAGO, June 12.—R. C. Wheelock of Zion, Ill., and his bride of two weeks, on their honeymoon, were killed and the pilot was injured today when an airplane fell 300 feet to the earth at Ashburn Field. According to the pilot, John Macdonald, the controls of the plane jammed, causing the accident.

What's Happening in the Motor World

Over five hundred attended the eighth annual picnic of the Alameda County Automobile Trade Association at Ramona park yesterday.

The crowd gathered early in the day at the north end of Lake Merritt and traveled over the Tunnel road to Walnut Creek and then to the park.

The baseball game between Alameda and Contra Costa associations was hard fought and the Alameda crowd claimed to have won 12 to 11. No one raised a row, they let it go at that.

There was a luncheon with the crowd seated at the grove of trees. Coffee was served.

The early part of the afternoon was given over to games of all sorts. There was a fat man's race and a fat ladies' race, and contests for thin ones and tall ones, a three-legged race, and a necktie race.

There were prizes for the winners of each event and in all nearly a hundred prizes were distributed, including oil, gasoline orders and various automobile necessities.

During the afternoon the winners of the gate prizes were announced by Robert W. Martland, secretary-manager of the association. A jazz band started.

Several well known city and county officials attended, including Judge Tyrrell, Grant Miller, Ed Planer, Tom Carney, George Gross, Ezra Decoto, M. J. Kelly and Supervisors Mullins and Stutz.

The events held and winners of them were as follows:

Twenty-five yards for girls 6 years old and under—Won by Ester Marie Crinlin, Patsy Bernard second.

Twenty-five yards for boys 6 and under—Won by Harvey Bernard Jr., Ben Thomas, second.

Fifty yards for girls under 12—Won by Barbara Booker; Ethel Peterson, second.

130 PUPILS OF OAKLAND HIGH TO BE GRADUATED

Commencement Exercises to Be Held at Auditorium Friday Night.

One hundred and thirty pupils will be graduated from the Oakland high school at commencement exercises which will be held at the municipal auditorium Friday night. The program, which will include a number of guests, will begin at 8 o'clock. John Hoyt, a member of the first graduating class of the school fifty years ago, and Dr. George C. Pardee, a member of the class of '76, will be the principal speakers, and invocation will be pronounced by Rev. R. C. Waddell, a member of the '08 class.

Sitting on the platform will be the living members of the Oakland high school first graduating class, the class of '72. These will be Mrs. Emma May, Fred L. Button, Mrs. William Ferguson, Lillie V. Hardy, John G. Hoyt, Mrs. James Stillman, Mrs. L. Bangs and Benjamin P. W. Thayer. There were fifteen in the first graduating class of the school. The "1922 Aegis," the Oakland high school's senior publication, made its appearance today. This volume is dedicated to the first class and gives the name of every graduate of the school up to date, 5000.

Since the beginning of the school in 1869 to the present time, there have been only three principals, J. E. McChesney, from 1869 to 1901; James Pond, from 1907 to 1908, and C. E. Keyes, from 1908 to the present time. The "Aegis" gives a brief history of the Oakland high school from the time of its foundation until the present, written by John R. Sutton, vice principal. Gerard Richardson, president of the school's Alumni association, has called a meeting which will be held at the auditorium Friday night immediately after the commencement exercises.

Lived Two Hours Beyond Prediction

REDDING, June 12.—After predicting two months ago that he would die on June 10, D. N. Honn, 84 years old and a veteran of the Civil War, died here yesterday morning at 2 o'clock, outliving the span he allotted himself by two hours. He is survived by a widow whom he married in 1916. The wedding attracted considerable attention at the time because both bride and groom had celebrated a golden wedding anniversary with previous mates.

ANTI-OBREGON GOVERNMENT IS NAMED BY DIAZ

President and Cabinet Proposed in Manifesto of Revolt Leader.

EL PASO, Tex., June 12.—General Manuel Palaez, who resigned from the Mexican army three weeks ago after controlling the Tampico oil fields several years, is in New York, according to reports in revolutionary circles, for a conference with revolutionary leaders, including Felix Diaz, General Francisco Murguía, of San Antonio, and Francisco Leon de la Barra, former foreign minister in Mexico, who has been residing in Paris. General Palaez has been residing in Los Angeles, Cal.

If the reports are correct this is the first move made by General Palaez which would directly connect him with the anti-Obregon activities. Manifestos, issued in El Paso over the name of Felix Diaz, now in New York for a conference with leaders of alleged Mexican revolutionary factions, set forth the names of the president and members of the cabinet of the provisional government which, it is said, he purposes to establish. Other executives would be: Secretary of exterior relations—L. Don Emilio Rabasa; Secretary of the interior—Lito Rodolfo Reyes, now in Madrid, Spain; Secretary of war and navy—Gen.

Secretary of public instruction—Loises Lopez.

Secretary of industry and commerce—Manuel Garza Aldape, now in New York.

Veteran Dies From World War Wounds

LOS ANGELES, June 12.—(By International News Service.) Lieutenant James E. Lowry, military instructor at Lincoln high school, and widely-known world war veteran, died early today at his apartment in South Fremont avenue, from the indirect effects of wounds received in the trenches. The army officer was ill during the night and awakened his roommate, Gordon Clark, shortly after midnight. Lowry later evidently fell off to sleep and when Clark arose this morning he went to his roommate's bed only to find him dead.

Little Theater Club Plans for Member Drive

MRS. JOSEPH N. BURROUGHS, who has been active in the Little Theater movement here.

—McCulloch Photo.

With an ambitious program outlined for the coming season, the Little Theater Club will present its closing production, Hubert Henry Davies' successful comedy "The Mollusc," in the Y. W. C. A. auditorium the night of June 22.

Initial plans for a membership drive will be made at a meeting of patronesses in the blue room, Hotel Oakland, next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, where tea will be served. Heading the patronesses are: Mrs. Thomas Mitchell Potter, Mrs. Joseph N. Burroughs, who has been exceptionally active in the Little Theater movement, Miss Mathilde Brown, Mrs. Minnie McCauley, Mrs. Charles Alva Sparks and others.

Variety will mark the production for the coming season. The aim of the Little Theater Club is to firmly establish an art center in Oakland, where the allied arts of the theater can meet and mingle on common ground. Miss Hedwig

Fallen Standards Deplored

Speaking on "The Farmer-Prephet's Vision of the Fallen Standard," yesterday morning at the First Presbyterian church, Dr. Frank M. Sisley said in part: "Is the standard of civilization today Christian or pagan? We speak of our Christian civilization. The fact is that the ruling standard of civilization is not spiritual but material. Too often our faith is in the dollar, in human genius, in business rather than in God. When that actor down south broke the marriage law and was excused by the court, and the women mobbed him in joy, it is an evidence of the fallen standards of today. When men and women become intoxicated at parties—when theaters are crowded on Sunday and the churches deserted it is an evidence of fallen standards.

"A fallen standard of civilization is evidenced in practical application. There is too big a stretch between profession and everyday practice—between creed and conduct. There is the anomaly of Sunday temple worship and the week-day sharp practice. In the business world are the standards Christian? Are not the 'show-strings' business men and the cut-throat methods of fallen standards? In professional life do we not often hear that poor people will have to die because they cannot afford the cost of an operation? In public life is not modern diplomacy too often a game of wits, and politics unclean? But what are we to do to lift the standard today? We are to hold to His Golden Rule. We are to stand for better business, better professional life, better public life, but above all we are to stand for a consecrated personal standard.

Prejudice Decried by Pastor

During morning services yesterday at the Centennial Presbyterian church, Rev. Edward C. Phillips, the pastor, spoke on the text: "What doth Christ come out of Galilee? Search and see that out of Galilee ariseth no prophet." He said, in part: "The Jews of that day were face to face with a vitally important question: Was Jesus the Christ, or was He not? Should they accept Him as their teacher and leader, or not?"

"Many of them chose to reject Him, and it is interesting and instructive to notice the ground of their opposition to Him. He came from Galilee. They assumed that He had been born in that section of the country. They failed to investigate. They didn't care to know the facts in the case that might militate against their position.

"On all sides of us there are evidences enough that men govern their lives all too often by prejudice rather than by clear thinking, and that they are unwilling to face facts that might disturb their self-satisfaction. This is true in all branches of human thinking, and in none is it likely to be more so than in the religious life.

"A man had better be honest than merely comforted and self-satisfied. The course taken by these Jews of Jesus' day proved the undoing of the whole nation. Such a weakening of the moral fiber is fatal every time. There are few things that either the church or the world need more imperatively today than just the spirit of fairness and honesty in our thinking."

WANDERING BOY GIVEN PROBATION BY MOTHER'S PLEA

"If I were hanged on the highest hill, Mother o' Mine—
"I know whose love would follow me still—Mother o' Mine!"

The atmosphere in the court of Judge Lincoln S. Church was vibrant today with these lines when the mother of J. A. Smith begged and pleaded that another chance might be given to her 25-year-old son, who was charged with having passed bad checks all the way from his home town in North Carolina to San Francisco and Oakland.

As a result of the pleading of the mother, who is broken and sick, and who has been haunting the police court and jail since her son was arrested, Smith was placed on seven years' probation by Judge Church.

It developed during the hearing of the case that the mother had followed her son, making frequent stops en route to gather the fictitious checks given out by her son, and make them good.

When Judge Church announced that he would place Smith on probation the little mother was so overjoyed that she threw her arms around Deputy District Attorney Earl Warren, who had sympathized with her in her efforts to gain probation.

Fire of God's Love Needed

A preacher not inoculated with the fire of his calling is absolutely useless no matter how high the standard of his education may be, was the contention of Rev. Harold Govette, pastor of the Olivet Congregational church in his sermon last night.

"The church of today," declared Rev. Govette, "needs mostly talent and organization but needs these things not half as much as it needs the fire of God's love." Continuing, he said:

"The difference between preachers, is the fire within the heart. The most useless thing in the world next to a useless church is a fireless preacher."

"The reason more souls are not saved by our churches today is because our churches are so cold, and the reason they are so cold is because there are so many icebergs in the pulpits.

"Some churches seek for ministers with style, some seek those who are alone known for the eloquence while others seek for those who are learned, but how few seek for those who are filled with the fire of God's love.

"When the preachers and churches are dominated by the power of love and all manifest it one toward another, the different church organizations will be brought together into one great spiritual unit with one Lord, one faith and with one purpose."

INTERVENTION IN CUBA.

Cuba is going through another government crisis. Four cabinet officers resigned last Saturday and further modification of the government is in progress. There is much popular excitement as a result of the changes and with the public temper so receptive for any wild suggestion, the prospect of ill-advised revolt or other mob disturbance is not as remote as might be desired.

It is freely stated in Havana that the upheaval in President Zayas' cabinet has been rendered necessary by the recent "recommendations" of Major General Crowder of the United States army. General Crowder has been in Cuba over a year, making a survey of financial, economic and political conditions. He visited Washington six weeks ago and personally submitted the results of his investigation to the President and the State and Treasury Departments. His communications to President Zayas, which have resulted in the cabinet resignations, immediately followed his return to Havana.

There need be no doubt that what General Crowder wrote to the president of Cuba had the specific authorization of the Washington government. The whole episode is intervention of the plainest kind in Cuban governmental affairs. Through General Crowder the United States has demanded that certain cabinet officers found unfit for their positions be withdrawn from public office and that a budget system be introduced into the Cuban fiscal administration.

These changes, with other legislative remedies proposed by General Crowder, will be a reasonable assurance that Cuba will get through her present troubles, for they will at once make available financial aid from the United States.

But intervention in this form certainly is to be preferred to the occupation of Cuba by American military and naval forces and the direct administration of Cuban government by American executives. A great improvement in official Cuban intelligence therefore is indicated by the acquiescence in the official advice of the United States. This should, and probably will, serve to avoid intervention in its harsher form.

THE BRIDGE CONFERENCE.

Upon the findings of the government experts in attendance at the bridge hearings in San Francisco this week depends a plan which may mean much in the development of Oakland and the Eastbay. The answer to the old question of a more rapid transportation between this city and San Francisco may be supplied when this meeting adjourns.

In brief, the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways is proposing to extend its mole to the shoals north of Goat Island and to erect on reclaimed territory a union terminal. Interested in the island and the harbor, and parties which must be consulted, are the Department of Commerce, the United States Navy, the United States Army Engineers and the United States Engineering Corps. To representatives of these departments the arguments of the railways are being put today.

Indicating some sort of preliminary meeting, and prospects for an agreement which will mean the establishment of the terminal north of the island, is the change made in the plans since they were first proposed. Between the proposed reclaimed area and Goat Island, under the newest plan, will be a narrow and deep-water harbor. The needs of the navy, the Department of Commerce and of the railways will be better served, it was argued, by such a harbor.

In the construction of the bridge, trestle or embankment from the present mole line to the island is the largest problem for immediate solution. The embankment is preferred by the transportation company if it will not interfere with the tidal flow, and the argument, so far, have been upon this question rather than on the general one of approval or rejection of the whole plan.

The position of the Department of Commerce was stated some weeks ago by Secretary Hoover. It was to the effect that if the proposed terminal would be open to any railroad company seeking its facilities, he regarded it as imperative and important to the development of the bay cities. An informal expression of the Navy's sentiments brought the change resulting in the harbor strip between the island and proposed fill.

It would seem that the work of the conference this week is one of detail, that the terminal plan in one form or another will be approved, and that a great engineering project to cut eight minutes from the time of crossing the bay will become, at last, certainty.

WELCOME, SHRINERS!

A cordial, a sincere, a happy welcome to the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine and their families and friends who have accompanied them to California. They are arriving today in long special trains from all parts of the country to attend the Imperial Conclave, their annual convention, in San Francisco.

These tens of thousands of visitors are of the nation's best citizens. They are known for their allegiance to American principles, for their courage in supporting the right, in combating evil; for their warm and charitable heart toward the weak and suffering. The bay cities are proudly happy to greet them.

The Shriners will remain with us a week. Their formal convention business will leave them much time for sightseeing, recreation and the making of new friendships. The people of the bay cities wish for them the largest benefit and the fullest possible measure of joy. And behind the decorated windows, along the flaming streets, the hearts of the outlooking citizens will applaud this week the men and the order whose deeds and aspirations are a blessing upon the earth.

RAILROAD PRESIDENT'S DISAGREE.

We are beginning to get outward, public blasts of the fight that has just started to get control of the Central Pacific Railroad, following the decision of the United States Supreme Court that that road must be divorced from Southern Pacific ownership and operation. These are faint and harmless at present. They indicate, however, the purpose and the general tactics of the belligerents.

Mr. Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific Railroad, which crosses the continent and has two coast arms (one running to Portland and the other to Los Angeles), says that if the Southern Pacific is to dispose of the Central Pacific the Union Pacific is in the market to buy. It will take it at any reasonable price and will stoutly protest against any plan to transfer the Central Pacific to any other control than the Union Pacific.

President Spruille of the Southern Pacific makes the observation that it is an astonishing statement that Union Pacific control of the Central Pacific will mean competitive conditions, inasmuch as the Union Pacific already has a coast terminal at Los Angeles and Portland. Mr. Spruille does not think the Central Pacific should be taken away from his company, and least of all that it should be transferred to the control of the Union Pacific.

California business organizations and individuals should make careful investigation as to what the effect of the court decree and the orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission may be.

JAPAN'S GOVERNMENT CRISIS.

Premier Takahashi was a liberal and inclined to be democratic—as liberalism and democracy go in Japan. Hence the government he formed has lasted only a few months. Difference with and then pressure from the militarists, with their political allies who are demanding new aggressions in China and Russia, have forced it to resign.

Admiral Baron Kato, Minister of Marine, has been asked to accept the premiership and form a new cabinet. He is well known to America. He was one of the principal delegates to the disarmament conference in Washington last winter. It may be expected that he will work with reasonable good faith for the carrying out of the foreign policies having root in the agreements concluded at the Washington conference.

Admiral Kato is much stronger with the governing clique and the public of Japan than was Mr. Takahashi. He may be able to go further in putting Japan in a happier position before the world than was possible under his predecessor, because he may handle the prevailing objections to the policy necessary to this end more effectively. But this remains to be observed.

If Sergeants Woodfill or York should ever visit Germany they should not expect as much attention as Jack Dempsey received on his late visit.

Now that the city of Yonkers has an official hymn one is willing to believe that American ingenuity will furnish a rhyme with Schenectady.

The city council of Traverse City, Mich., has announced that any woman wearing knickers on the streets will be arrested. Without wasting the time to wonder what manner of men these councilmen must be, we can agree with R. That Is That.

Before we forget it, we would like to go on record as making one of "those men who make pretence to knowing what is what, the modern man of today." The president of a druggists' organization meeting recently in Los Angeles, have their pet face powders and perfumes and make a rapidly growing class of customers who must be reckoned. No man, said the president, can pretend to know what is what or be modern, unless he does the same.

We are proud when we do not know what is what and intend to retain in that state of ignorance. The flower men may crowd us into an annual observance of one day for the mothers, the decorators appeal to us with their yearly hints to spruce up the fences and the homes, and there are many men who step forward with good advice and order books whom we give attentive ear. No man, however, can make us adopt a pet face powder and become a cake-eater and all in the name of knowing "what is what."

NOTES and COMMENT

Thus the Merced Star: "R. A. Ballinger is dead. Most people will say, 'Where have we heard that name before?' Just another evidence of how short is memory. In the days of the Taft administration Ballinger, as Secretary of the Interior, was the center of the Alaskan coal claim imbroglio that all but wrecked the Taft administration. Glavis, Cunningham and Pinchot were also first-page names in that same connection, and Pinchot was the loser, being removed by Taft as chief forester. Today Ballinger is dead. Glavis and Cunningham forgotten. Taft comfortably retired to the Supreme bench, and Pinchot's star is in the ascendancy and he bids fair to become again a national figure. So turns the wheel of fate."

The Boston Transcript honors Pinchot: "On Memorial Day at New Rochelle a delegation placed wreaths on Thomas Pinchot's monument, for the author of the 'Rights of Man' had enlisted and served in the Continental Army, before the time came for him to sail away and later risk his own life by voting to spare that of Louis XVI, one of the dullest of men, while Pinchot was one of the most alert. History has made a good many awkward mistakes, some of which are difficult to explain, and of these one of the stupidest and cruellest was that which for years pursued Thomas Pinchot with the fame of a regicide, atheist and debauchee."

This, from the Brooklyn Eagle, may interest Californians: "One reads with some regret that the residence in Great Britain, which cost Mrs. Mark Hopkins $2,000,000 before the architect married her, is sold for $75,000. But really men realize that the fads and fancies of one person are not those of another person. Much of the value of such a place is sunk forever, except in pleasure given to the original designer."

The Medford Mail-Tribune considers some recent occurrences: "A 9-year-old boy in Portland killed a playmate with a paring knife; another back East shot a boy friend over an old pipe, and now a 11-year-old in Idaho confesses he endeavored to put poison in his mother's tea. A few more incidents like the above and the parents will quit worrying about the number of vitamins in the oatmeal, and have experts tell 'em the best place to apply a shingle."

Little doubt has existed as to the charges against the city employees dismissed for alleged membership in the Ku Klux Klan that the matter could stand the test of court scrutiny. The action of two Superior Court judges sitting en banc, in issuing an order restraining the trial of these men because of insufficiency of legal facts was, therefore, almost a self-evident one.—Sacramento Union.

The Oakland Tribune, referring to the Register's statement that Hayward has a "less fertile surrounding country" than Watsonville, says this may get a rise out of the Haywardites. It it will invite them down here for a tour of investigation and appraisal. The trip would be an eye-opener. If they can show us a bigger apricot orchard around Hayward, larger cherry trees, more acres in apples, greater women, the style of them and their general surroundings are things even Californians will admit, including the San Franciscans themselves. But we are going to keep watch and check up on this man Chatham to see if he ventures to make the same assertion about the women of Los Angeles."

CILICIA

Cilicia, one of the most important regions of Asia Minor, from which French troops are being withdrawn as a result of the much-discussed agreement between France and Mustapha Kemal Pasha, dictator of Asiatic Turkey, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"If an artist, an engineer, a farmer and a mining prospector were sent out to find the most desirable region in Asia Minor they probably would come nearer to agreeing on Cilicia than on any other section," says the bulletin. "In hardly any portion of Europe or America has nature been so generous as to this relatively small area at the extreme northeastern corner of the Mediterranean; and though man has not made the most of his opportunities on the material side by turning potential into actual riches, it is only a question of time—and perhaps of world politics—until he will."

"Along most of the southern coast of Asia Minor the lowlands form a very narrow strip. Near the extreme northeastern corner of the Mediterranean, however, at the southern base of the Asia Minor peninsula, the sea plain broadens out, forming a fairly level region more than 75 miles long and from 20 to 60 miles broad. At the sea's 'corner' the highlands close in again, and the coast through Syria and Palestine for 500 miles to Egypt is rugged except for occasional narrow strips. Cilicia, therefore, is a sort of coastal oasis. "Back of the Cilician plain rises the semi-circle of the Taurus mountains from whose heavily wooded slopes timber has been taken for ages to meet the needs of treeless Egypt and relatively treeless Syria. From the Taurus flow numerous streams the year round, watering the fertile plain and making possible extensive irrigation whenever the necessary dams and canals shall be furnished. Even under the blighting rule of the Turk, and with the handicap of a semi-circle, semi-agricultural populace, which has let much of the country become swampy, Cilicia has produced good crops of rice, maize, sugar-cane, fruits, tobacco and cotton. Its climate and soil are especially good for the production of the latter crop."

"Some of the streams flowing from the high Taurus offer excellent opportunities for power development, and in the mountains is much unexploited mineral wealth. The Taurus are famous for their scenic beauty and they have a practical boon through the centuries to the city folk who have dwelt in the Cilician plains since the beginning of recorded history. Villages were constructed among the foothills and in the pleasant valleys that extend upward into the mountains in both the Greek and Roman eras. In this favored region the Germans planned to create a great base for the realization of their dream of expansion into the East. "The Taurus have formed in their time one of the most important military frontiers in the Old World. They were practically impassable except through a deep gorge known as the Cilician Gates. For a long time the road, capable of use only by beasts of burden, ran in a narrow stream bed, more than 40 years before Christ became homeless. De Lesseps constructed a roadway through the defile for wheeled vehicles, a work which probably changed the whole course of history in that part of the world. Cilicia became the half-way house for commerce between Egypt, Syria, Arabia, Mesopotamia and even the Far East on the one hand, and the Greek and Roman worlds on the other. Almost exactly over the Greek caravan route the famous Baghdad railway has been constructed in late years, making Cilicia again an important way station. British soldiers, prisoners of the Turks, performed much of the labor in constructing the difficult section of the road through the Taurus."

"Whether conquest ebbed eastward or westward Cilicia was sure to be in its path. The Persians ruled the country 1000 years before Christ. Xenophon and Cyrus passed that way. Alexander came through the gates to Cilicia in 333 B. C. and defeated Darius on the plain of Issus. After his death a Greek kingdom sprang up there. Rome set up her standard in Cilicia in 103 B. C. to remain for several hundred years. Tarsus, the home of St. Paul, was the principal city of Cilicia in Roman times. It was made a free city by Marc Antony; and there he was visited by Cleopatra."

FUNERAL SERVICE IS ARRANGED FOR COL. H. LOVELAND

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Funeral services for Colonel Harvey D. Loveland, member of the state railroad commission since its inception, and widely sought authority on transportation problems, will be held Thursday at 10 a. m. from Masonic temple, under the auspices of San Francisco lodge No. 350, F. & A. M. Colonel Loveland died yesterday at his home, 1555 Clay street, following an illness of several months. He had been unconscious for 48 hours prior to his death. Last March Colonel Loveland sustained an injury to his foot which was followed by blood poisoning. The infection, aggravated by an abdominal complaint, contributed to the long illness. Although forced to discontinue attendance upon the sessions of the railroad commission many weeks ago, the dean of that body discharged important duties at home until ill health forced him to forego any further participation. Colonel Loveland is survived by a widow, Mrs. Lulu Loveland; a son, W. J. Loveland, of Berkeley, and a nephew, Harvey A. Loveland, of Oakland.

DEAN OF COMMISSIONERS. Colonel Loveland was the dean of public utility commissioners in point of service in the United States. Continuously since 1907 he has been a member of the state railroad commission. Appointed by Governor J. N. Gillett to fill the unexpired term of A. M. Wilson, retired, he was re-elected in 1910 to the commission. Upon its reorganization the year following, under the public utilities act, he became one of the five members. At the expiration of his term he received reappointment. Twice thereafter he was named to succeed himself. His present term of six years began in January 1, 1921.

In 1887, Colonel Loveland came to San Francisco. He became affiliated with the Pacific Coast Jobbers' and Manufacturers' Association, serving that organization as president for six years. He was also president of the San Francisco Commercial Congress. Prosecution of certain notable jobbing suits before the interstate commerce commission gained public attention for him.

SERVED WITH GUARD. After sixteen years' service with the National Guard of California, Loveland was retired with the rank of colonel in 1918. He was paymaster general on the staff of Governor George Pardee. He entered the National Guard with the rank of lieutenant-colonel. Born in New York in 1853, he removed to Kansas in 1876, where he was admitted to the bar in 1881. He taught school in both New York state and in Kansas. He was 69 years old at the time of his death. Colonel Loveland was past commander of the Knights Templar, California, and past grand orator of the Grand Lodge of Masons of California. He was a member of A. M., Golden Gate chapter, Royal Arch Masons, Golden Gate Commandery, Knights Templar, and San Francisco Consistory, Scottish Rite bodies. He was also a member of the Union League club of San Francisco.

Calvin said that the cause of his seeking death was due to business troubles. Calvin is a good swimmer and remained on top of the water all the time.

BAY SHOALS TO BECOME TERMINAL

Plan Provides For Yards and Docks on Reclaimed Land, With Deep Channel, Harbor Adjoining Goat Island

moderate amount of space reserved for future extension. Land for further enlargement can be secured by extending the reclamation work northerly upon the shoal within the limitation of the bulkhead lines wherever they may be hereafter established.

TO MAKE NEW LAND. "The method suggested for the reclamation of the shoal is that heretofore used in constructing the Key System Pier Fill; that is, by building a loose rock bulkhead around the prescribed area, and filling the interior by means of hydraulic dredging from remaining portions of the shoal. It was the original intention to connect the eastern and western boundary bulkheads with the northeastern and northwestern corners of the island respectively.

"It is understood, however, that the naval officers stationed on the island consider it desirable to preserve a safe harbor of refuge for their small craft when the south-east storms make the moorings on that side of the island untenable. It appears, furthermore, that the need likewise exists for a place adjoining the terminal where ferry boats may be laid up in quiet water at all times when off the run. Accordingly the tentative plan, contemplating building a bulkhead along the southern side of the reclaimed area.

BRIDGE BIG ITEM. "The greatest single item of cost involved in the Goat Island terminal project is the crossing of the channel lying between the east shore and that island. At the best this cost will be a heavy one, and should the conditions imposed be at all severe the cost may readily mount so high as to render the project commercially impossible to the present generation. The cost of crossing this channel might alone require a capital expenditure as large as would be justifiable for the entire project.

"A number of possible means of crossing the channel exist, and they are of various degrees of desirability. In nearly all respects a solid embankment of rock and earth is much the most desirable.

"Two possible grounds for objection to the complete closing of this channel present themselves. "First—Interference with tidal flow.

"Second—Obstruction of navigation.

"Second in desirability to an embankment is a trestle. While it built on a suitable low level it would intercept navigation to the same extent as would the embankment, it would interfere with the tidal flow in only a small degree.

"The task of constructing a trestle across the deep water near the shoal would not be without its difficulties, but they do not appear insurmountable.

BRIDGE COSTLY. "A trestle of necessary width for a vehicle roadway, and the railway tracks necessary at the beginning will not only cost much less than a bridge of the same capacity, but its width can be more readily increased as future necessities appear.

"A bridge would be the most costly type of structure. The unusual depth of water at this site, together with the soft bottom, will make the foundation work especially costly. The great width required for a vehicle roadway and even two railway tracks will demand a double-deck structure, a type that is expensive in itself.

"In the case of a bridge the height to which it is practicable to raise the track grade is severely limited. Contrary to the general belief, the area available for terminal yards on this shoal is not huge and it is especially limited on the east-west line, the most important direction.

"Expansion into the parallel track system of the terminal station must necessarily begin at the eastern edge of the reclaimed area, or even before leaving the viaduct, and the yard should be level throughout its length.

"It is most desirable, then, that the descending grade of the viaduct reach the level of the reclaimed area at its extreme eastern border.

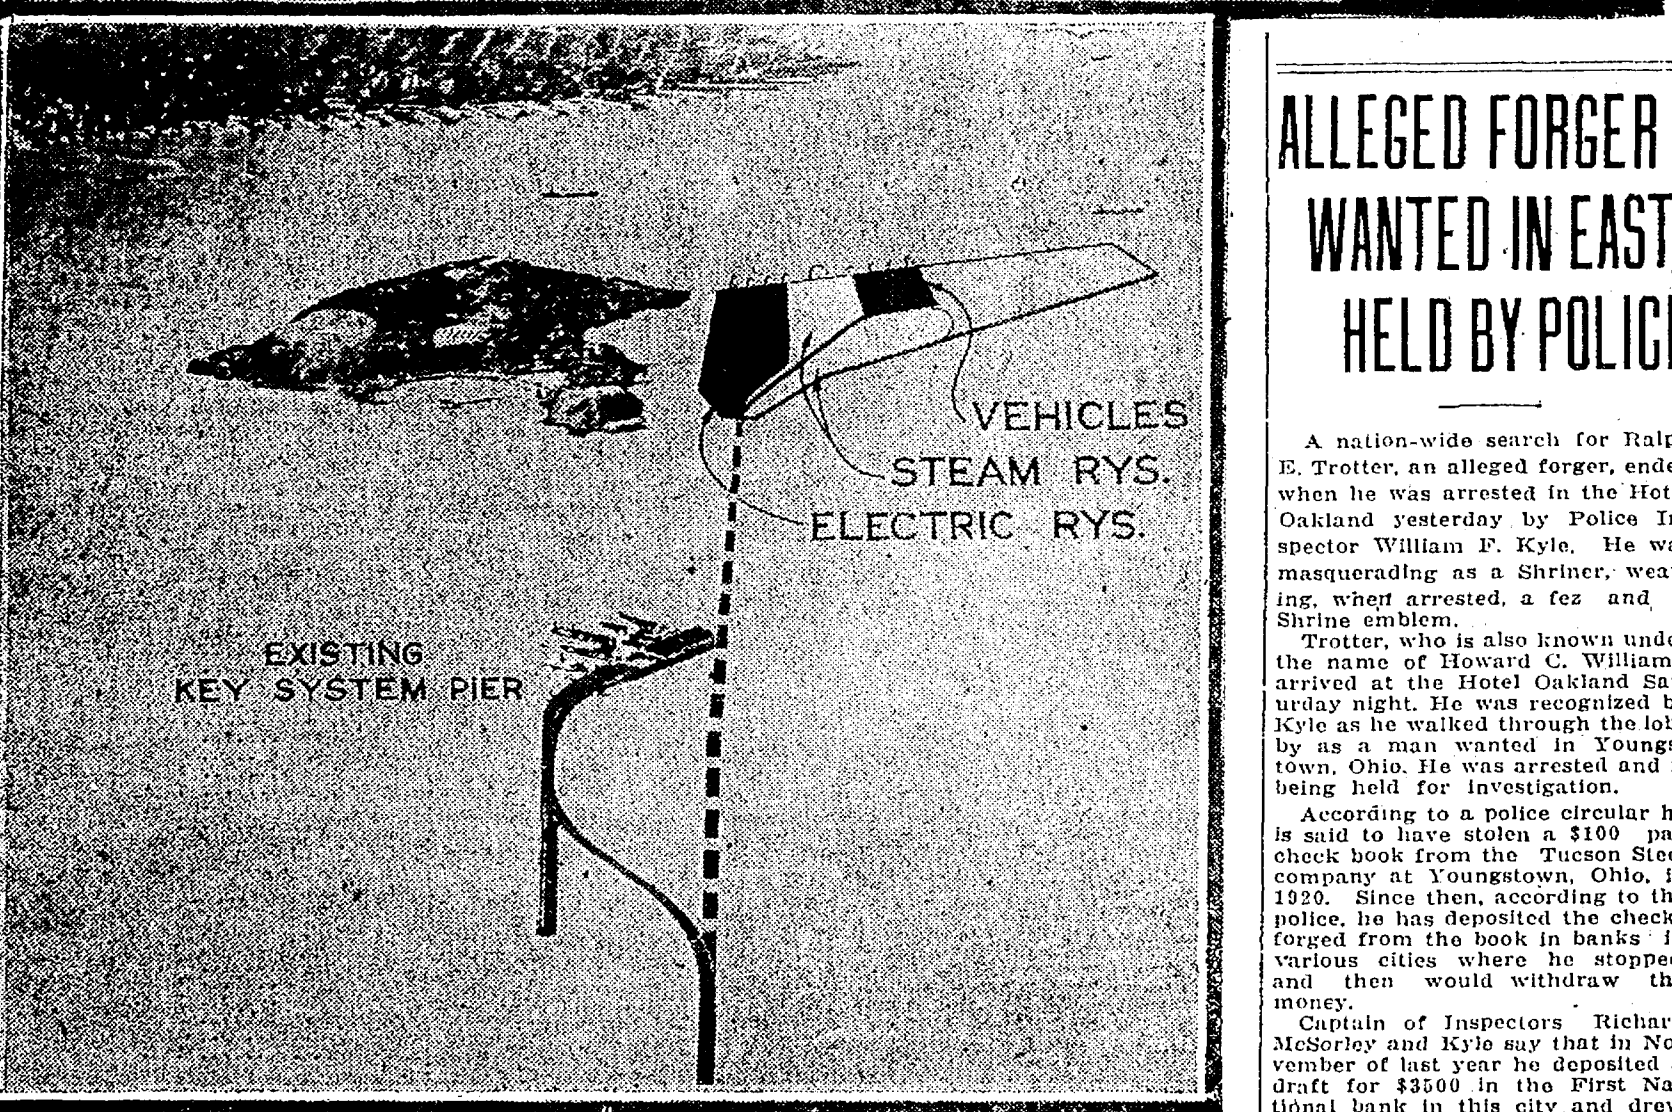

"Even if the designated channel for boats is located at the eastern edge of the deep water near the pier head-line, the distance intervening between there and the terminal yard is too small to provide for a descent from a considerable height without employing a prohibitive gradient. A very heavy grade descending into a terminal yard, objectionable for arriving and departing trains, must be avoided."

HISTORY OF PLAN. A general statement of the proposal, with a history of the "bridge-the-bay" discussion since 1866, when Charles Main proposed a bridge to Goat Island, was read by John S. Drum, president of the Mercantile Trust Company and member of the Advisory board of the railway. W. I. Brobeck, attorney for the railway, had the presentation of the arguments in charge.

According to a plan announced by General Beach, who presided, the objections, if any, will be offered at the close. In the group representing Oakland were: Mayor John L. Davis, City Attorney Leon Gray, Commissioner Albert E. Carter, City Engineer Ralph Brobeck, Wilbur Walker of the Merchants' Exchange and others. Mayor Frank Otis of Alameda, Supervisor Richard Welch of San Francisco, and City Engineer M. M. O'Shaughnessy of San Francisco.

Ferry Palace to Be Reared in Center of Bay

First pictures of proposed union passenger terminal at Goat Island. The building as planned has eight ferry slips and dome. Its conspicuous position in the center of the bay is responsible for unusual attention to architectural beauty. Below is shown a birdseye view of the island with the area, on the shoals, which is to be reclaimed marked off. It will be noticed that this area is as large, or larger than the entire island.

TWO KILLED, 9 HURT IN ACCIDENTS

Driver Loses Control and Car Traveling at High Rate of Speed Leaves Road and Overtakes Into Ditch

Two persons are dead and nine others, one of whom will probably die, are suffering from injuries, as the result of Sunday's automobile accidents.

DEAD. LEON CROCE, grocer, 4810 Clark street, Oakland. JOHN COX, 4106 Lusk avenue, Oakland.

INJURED. MARTIN MORAN, Key Route conductor, 5820 Telegraph avenue, Oakland; fractured skull and internal injuries, condition critical, may die.

PATROLMAN MARTIN FAHY, 4106 Lusk avenue, Oakland; badly bruised and cut.

ALBERT PENCOVIC, 2557 San Pablo avenue, Oakland; bruises and lacerations and internal injuries.

MRS. ALBERT PENCOVIC, same address; bruises and cuts.

VICTOR MILTON, same address; cuts and bruises.

MRS. R. H. SCHERFF, 180 Trumbull street, Oakland; broken left arm and possibly fractured skull.

AL SCHERFF, same address; cuts and bruises.

HAROLD SCHERFF, 2; minor cuts.

HELEN SCHERFF, 4; bruises.

Cox was almost instantly killed and Croce died early today of his injuries, following an accident which occurred last night at Estudillo avenue and Foothill boulevard when the automobile in which Croce, Cox and Patrolman Fahy and Moran were riding left the highway and overturned in a ditch.

CAR DRIVEN AT HIGH SPEED. The machine bearing the four men was proceeding at a high rate of speed along Foothill boulevard, according to G. W. Scott, 5534 Collegio avenue, Oakland, who was an eye witness to the accident. Scott says the driver of the car turned to watch a motorcyclist who sped by him. The machine crashed off the road, crashed through a barb wire fence and overturned twice, pinning three of its occupants to the ground. Fahy was thrown clear of the car and escaped with less serious injuries than the others. The men were taken to the Alameda emergency hospital by passing motorists. Cox was dead upon arrival.

Pencovic, his wife, and Milton were hurt when their automobile was struck by a car driven by

GRADUATION THIS WEEK SETS RECORD

Total in 51 Oakland Schools Greater Than Any Former Year; Ceremonies to Run Throughout Several Days

This is not only Shrine Week but Graduation week as well. Almost all of the 51 schools and high schools of Oakland will hold ceremonies this week for the students who have passed the tests, and this year sees the greatest number of graduates for any year so far.

Clawson school is one of the earliest to hold its ceremonies. This will be Tuesday evening at the Clawson auditorium, and will be featured by an address by Superintendent of Schools Fred M. Hunter and the presentation of diplomas by Principal A. S. Cotten. Winifred Orton, class president, will deliver a speech for the graduates and the school orchestra will furnish music.

Longfellow school holds its exercises on the evening of June 15 at the school auditorium, featured by a "panorama of California history" staged by the students. Principal W. C. Kottinger will present the diplomas.

Longfellow school will graduate on the afternoon of June 16, at the school auditorium. E. Morris Cox, assistant superintendent of schools, will address the students, and Principal W. E. Moore will present the diplomas. John Bushnell will give the valedictory.

Friday, June 16, will also witness the graduation ceremonies of Fremont high school. Harry Boyle, president of the board of education, will present the diplomas, the high school orchestra will play classical selections, and among the speakers will be Class President Alfred Elster. Future Class President Myrtle Wamsley, Charles Crowley, Rena Crosby, William Schwartz, Orville Murphy and John Ward.

HUNT FOR WOMAN SLAYER SUSPECTS RENEWED BY S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—The search for the two Castor brothers in connection with the murder on the night of May 20, when Mrs. Anna Wilkens, was continued by police today.

According to word reaching here yesterday, two men, believed to be Arthur and Walter Castor, were seen in Chico late Saturday night. The men who answer the descriptions of the Castor brothers were accompanied by an older man.

Detective Captain Duncan Matheson was busy all day yesterday running down clues in his possession relative to a third suspect in the murder case, and his investigations, it is said, took him as far down the peninsula as San Jose. Matheson now believes that although the Castor brothers were riding in the bandit car at the time of the crime, the shooting was done by a third party. Henry Wilkens, husband of the murdered woman, failed to identify either of the Castor brothers as the man who shot his wife and robbed him of $300. He informed police that he believed he could identify the slayer if he heard his voice.

Detectives doubt whether Wilkens could have seen the two men in the front seat of the bandit car clearly enough to identify them.

Tourist Caravan To Visit Muir Home

Accompanied by a large contingent of tourists, under the direction of the Hospitality Bureau of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, the Contra Costa Hills club will visit the home of the late John Muir near Martinez next Sunday, announces J. Carl Seuberg, president of the club. Arrangements have been made to transport the party by motor buses at a reduced rate. A number of private cars will join this caravan.

The start will be made from the Oakland Chamber of Commerce in the Hotel Oakland at 9 a. m. and the route will be via Crockett and Martinez to Muir's home. After luncheon on the picturesque knoll where the noted naturalist lived for 35 years, a short program will be conducted for the purpose of discussing plans for the preservation of this literary shrine.

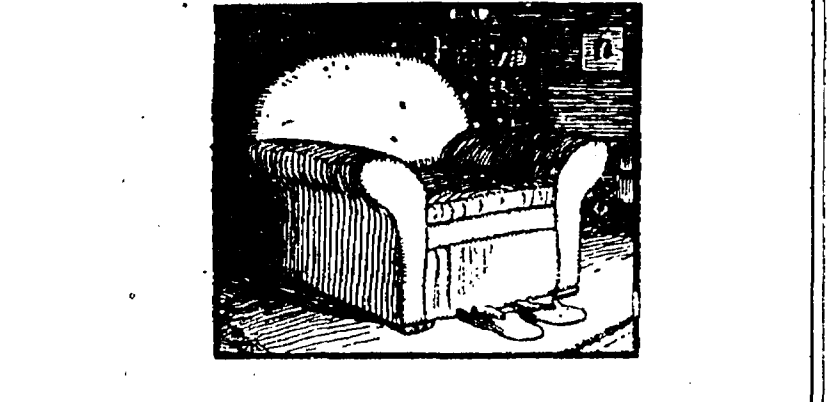

Hayward to Hear Bay Women's Chief

OAKS RECEIVE TWO MORE SPANKINGS, OWNERS CRY FOR HELP

TIGERS, SEALS, ANGELS AND BEAVERS ARE FLAG CONTENDERS AT END OF TENTH WEEK

GRIGGS KNOCKS TWO HOMERSTO WIN LAST GAME OF S.F. SERIES

Seals Beat Lyons in Morning Game, But Tom Hughes Scores Second Win of Week

By DOUG MONTEIL
The up and coming Seals waded through the Angels in the morning game yesterday for an 8 to 2 win, but crumpled for the second time in the week in the afternoon contest, when Long Tom Hughes took the mound and got away with his second win of the week by a score of 4 to 3. Too much Hughes and Art Griggs' hitting is explanation of the Seals' defeat in the final game of the series, the elongated southern twirler working without apparent effort, but worming himself out of the tight places. At times it appeared as though the Seals could not help but win despite their lack of hitting, for the Angel defense was none too good in spots, but Bob Geary fed Art Griggs a couple of fat ones which the Angel first-sacker promptly poled into the left-field stands for circuit clouts.

Griggs hit his first home in the third inning of the p.m. contest and followed suit in the fifth. No one else on the bases at either time. Griggs was not alone in swatting the offerings of Geary freely, and in the seven frames that Geary worked the Angels massaged the Seals for eleven safeties. But in the field were responsible for the Seals coming as close to winning from Hughes as they did, and the Angels amassed four errors in both games of the bill.

Alten Beats Lyons in Morning Game

The morning game was full of aggravating situations, the Seals outplaying the Angels in the field and outbidding them. Ernie Alten toiled on the hill, and had the best of the argument over Lyons, who was beaten for the second time of the series. The Seals led for one inning, the second, but the Seals came along and led the rest of the distance. Red Baldwin had a tough time of it behind the plate, being charged with a pair of boots. He failed to trap a man at the plate when the squeeze play went wrong. Baldwin made a dive for Gene Valle and snatched him, but the ball breaking away as Valle lay on the ground. He promptly made a scramble for the plate. Pete Kilduff came close to figuring in the ninth department when he tried too close to the plate awaiting his turn at bat, and was hit on the head by a tip off Red Rhynes' bat. When he was ready to bat Lyons hit him with a pair of boots, and little Pete hopped all over the lot, but bloodshed was averted.

Geary Ineffective in The Afternoon

Manager Miller guessed wrong when he selected Geary to hurl the last game of the series. Geary was not the man to lead the Seals in the first game of the series, and it required considerable fiddling to keep the score as low as it remained. Two hits in the first and three in the second brought out two. Lindmore led off with a double and came around on McCauley's single. Day drove O'Connell's home run for his first homer, and then Hughes sacrificed McCauley along a bag. McCauley's single scored McCauley.

Griggs Swats Pill to Left-Field Stands

Art Griggs put his club further ahead in the third when he hit a left fielder with a derby in the left center field bleachers. Then the Seals were attacked with signs of life, and came to bat in the fourth with enough men on base to score. Griggs' home run, O'Connell's single, and Griggs' double counted for a hit. O'Connell's single and took third when Day pitched out the bag at home. Griggs' single to score O'Connell. Rhynes and Kilduff worked the double steal and Day was excited at the procedure. Griggs threw the ball to the Angel dug-out, Rhynes cluttered in, and when Kilduff rounded third and headed for the plate, Manager Killefer tossed the ball from the dugout. Kilduff, Byron saved the situation by waving Kilduff back to third, otherwise Killefer, who was not in the game, should have been credited with a save. Stockton Winner in Valley League

STOCKTON, June 12.—Aided by a triple play and three double plays, Stockton won the Northern Valley championship from Los Angeles yesterday. The triple came with the bases filled when George hit a line fly to Joe Geiden, who tagged the runner in the first base and took the third man. Barton Peters, 18-year-old Stockton boy, pitched for the Seals. The score: Stockton, 6; Los Angeles, 2. The score: Stockton, 6; Los Angeles, 2. The score: Stockton, 6; Los Angeles, 2.

Pennant Race Is Third Gone, Three in Lead

New York Clubs Continue to Head Lists, But Others Also Figure.

By BABE RUTH
ST. LOUIS, June 12.—With the season almost one-third spent, the major league races have yet to produce a club of such outstanding class as to justify its followers in claiming a pennant out of hand.

Both pennant pursuits give every indication of developing into an all-fash-ioned dog-fight, with three or more formidable contenders battling to the end for either flag. Prior to the opening of the season it was pretty generally predicted that the Yankees and the Giants would repeat their 1921 successes and pull another all-New York world's series next fall. The acquisition of Sam Jones and Bullet Joe Bush was supposed to have given the Yankees the pitching strength required to make them win high invincible, and the Melina Groh deal was believed to have given the Giants an overwhelming edge on their National League rivals.

Indeed, there was a noticeable tendency in some quarters to regard both teams as "in" before they started, with the Yankees winning their second consecutive pennant by any where from ten to fifteen games and the Giants "breaking up" the National League campaign before the fourth of July. Only in St. Louis, where the Browns and the Cardinals were thought to be verging on pennant class, did the experts and fans show a sincere disposition to dispute the supremacy of the New York clubs.

Now, however, the pennant hope is burning bright in half dozen centers of the major league baseball culture. Neither of the New York clubs has proven itself to be invincible and instead of being way out in front both the Yankees and Giants are finding it increasingly difficult to keep their lead. Formidable opponents are pressing close behind them, threatening to overtake and pass them almost at any time.

As the contention right along that the St. Louis Browns would give the Yankees a real battle all the way, but I must confess that the Giants' failure to establish a commanding lead has been something of a surprise to me. I figured that they would be six or eight games to the good before the Cardinals and the Pirates "found" themselves, yet the opening of the Western clubs, first invasion of the East, found them only two games ahead of the third place Cardinals and after losing six out of seven games to the second division Phillies and Braves.

This means, of course, that the Giants have been overrated, and that they will have to hustle all the way to repeat last season's triumphs in the face of such opposition as the Cardinals, the Pirates and perhaps the Brooklyn Robins. With much against them, though, wonderfully impressive while playing at the polo grounds they seem unable to "do their stuff" on foreign fields, and this is a handicap which may easily prove fatal in the end, of course, the St. Louis pitching staff proves utterly inadequate or the Pirates begin to take things for granted as they did last season.

"Speed" Martin Wins For St. Paul Club

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 12.—The St. Paul Saints won both games of yesterday's double-header with Toledo. "Speed" Martin twirled for the Saints in the first game and took things easy all the way, as his team had a walkaway. The score of the first game: St. Paul, 4; Toledo, 0. The score of the second game: St. Paul, 4; Toledo, 0.

INDIANS BEAT PORTLAND TWO MORE IN NORTH

SEATTLE, Wash., June 12.—By winning both ends of a double bill yesterday by scores of 2 to 1 and 4 to 1, the Indians captured honors in their series against Portland by a margin of one game. Southpaws were in order for the day. Vern Gregg tossed a win in the first contest while Burger displayed too much stuff for the Beavers in the second contest.

Suds Sutherland pitched a three-hit game for Portland in the first game all to no avail for his mates could do no good behind him. Walberg was the victim of the second contest, when Seattle hopped on him at opportune times to gather their runs in pairs.

PORTLAND TWO MORE IN NORTH

SEATTLE, Wash., June 12.—The home game pulled the series from the first yesterday when the Indians defeated the Beavers in a double encounter, beating Clinton Prough 5 to 3 in the first setto and repeating by a score of 6 to 4 against Fenner. On both occasions the Senators let the Bees know they were in the running for honors by tying the score, only to have the swiftness of Salt Lake come right back with a few more baseknocks to break it up again.

Pair of Wins Helps Tigers To Take Lead

Harry Krause Loses Hard Game, But Jones, Brenton Are Walloped.

LOS ANGELES, June 11.—The Vernon Tigers stepped into first place in the Coast League pennant chase by taking both games of yesterday's double header with Ivan Howard's Oaks. The first game was a real battle, the Tigers having to fight into the tenth inning when, with two out, Jesse Doyle singled and scored when "Red" Smith and Chabourne did likewise. The Tigers held a 3 to 1 lead over the Oaks in the eighth, but the visitors started something and scored a pair of runs to tie the score. A walk to Harry Krause, a double by Claude Cooper and a triple by Don Brown did the trick. May quit the box after that inning and Doyle finished the job. Krause was nicked for fourteen hits in the ten innings, but he was effective in most of the pitches. The final count was 4 to 3.

In the second game Deacon Jones started for the Oaks and lasted four innings, long enough to let the Tigers clinch the game by making five runs. Brenton then took up the pitching for the Oaks, and in all of the two pitchers, the Tigers got 15 hits for an 11 to 3 win. "Wheeler" Dell did the honors for the Tigers. "Red" Smith, the Vernon third sacker, had a great day with the stick, getting seven hits out of eleven times at bat. The score: First game—Tigers, 4; Oaks, 3. Second game—Tigers, 11; Oaks, 3.

IMMEDIATE HELP IS NEEDED TO PUT OAKS BACK IN FLAG RACE

Cal Ewing Figures That Team Must Be a Winner During Stay on Home Diamond

By EDDIE MURPHY
Three wins out of their last fifteen games is the record of Ivan Howard's Oaks. According to Cal Ewing and Herbie McFarlin, every effort is being made to secure new men to help the club out of the rut. When the long-needed help will arrive, if it ever does, even Cal and Herbie cannot say. For the past ten days they have been saying: "We expect help in a day or two." The days have started to grow to weeks, and unless the help comes soon, the Oaks may be so far out of the running that they will not be conceded a chance of winning the bunting, even as early as July Fourth. Telegrams at local baseball headquarters are proof that Herbie and Cal are trying to land new material. Some of the telegrams carry words of encouragement, while others say "nothing doing." If one or two ball club owners in the big leagues will just have pity on Cal Ewing and his Oaks, and not refuse waivers on a couple of players, the Oaks will get the help they are after. But if they stand pat and refuse to let the players out of the league, the going for the locals will not be any easier than it is at present.

Of the five games out of seven which the Oaks lost to the Vernon Tigers last week, only one of them was lost by more than two runs. But that is not cutting any ice with the entire ball fans, what they want is the team to win more often. Losing by one or two runs is just as bad as losing by ten or twenty, as one defeat counts just the same. One more angle is a couple of good hurriers is what the Oaks need to put them back in the race. There is no telling if they will ever get them, because they don't it will not be because the owners of the local club are not trying.

Baseball Men Pay J. C. Dunn Final Tribute

Cleveland Owner Laid to Rest in Home Town; Celebrities Attend.
MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa, June 12.—On a cool slope of Riverside cemetery, under a bright June sky, the body of James C. Dunn, "Square Shooter" of baseball, and beloved owner of the Cleveland American League baseball club, was laid to rest at 3 p. m. yesterday while notable names whose names are known through the entire country stood at the grave and paid a last tribute to their friend and leader.

Among the baseball celebrities who came to Marshalltown, Mr. Dunn's family, Mr. Dunn's assistant at the last rituals were B. B. Johnson, president of the American League, Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington American League club, Jack Graney and Leslie Nunnemaker, Cleveland Indian players, and M. H. Sexton, president of the National Association of Minor Leagues. Floral offerings from all parts of the country, which covered the grave and made it a deep mound of delicate bloom, attended to the esteem in which the Marshalltown man was held.

In addition to the dozen of floral wreaths from personal friends of the deceased, many of them from every club in the American and National leagues, the Mississippi Valley League, from Judge K. L. Landis, co-owner of the St. Paul club, Mayor Kohler of Cleveland, and from the Cleveland police and fire departments.

A huge blanket of roses, numbering hundreds of pieces, sent by Cleveland players and ball park employees, covered the casket. A huge floral baseball stood at the head of the grave, a gift of the Cleveland chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association.

The body of the baseball magnate, accompanied by Mrs. Dunn and a larger delegation of notables, arrived at Marshalltown from Chicago, where Mr. Dunn died Friday morning, at 3:30 o'clock this morning. A large group of relatives and close personal "home town" friends of the deceased, many of them of his boyhood days, met the body of the body at the station.

The funeral services for "Sunny" Dunn were in charge of Marshalltown Lodge No. 212, B. O. E. A. A brief private prayer service was held at the home in the presence of Mrs. Dunn and a few relatives at 2:30 p. m. At 3 o'clock the cortege left the residence, escorted by a long procession of automobiles, and proceeded to the cemetery, where interment took place.

P. E. Northrup, a Marshalltown attorney, and member of the local society of Elks, who was a personal friend of Mr. Dunn, read the funeral address.

"He was a sportsman, for the love of the game. He was not born to wealth, it was his real manhood and his sheer merit of mind that endeared him to the nation." Tributes to the personality of the baseball magnate were many from the group of celebrities of the game who came to Marshalltown to attend the funeral.

Leonard Pitches Fresh to a Win

FRESNO, Cal., June 12.—The Fresno Valley League Club spotted Dutch Leonard, former Detroit slacker, a margin of four runs in the first three innings here yesterday and he had no trouble stopping Collings. Leonard was in better form than last Sunday and kept Collings' nine hits scattered, except in the fourth when he eased up and was tagged for three hits and a brace of runs. Leonard's single drove in two runs in the second.

Should a Woman TELL?

by Hazel DeVos Balch

Hawthorne Emery decides to marry Dane Merrill without telling him that she has once been in love with another man. She discovers later that he is very narrow in his ideas about women, and then she learns that Julie, Dane's little butterfly sister, is in love with the same man. Hawthorne loves Cranford Blake, or Carroll Blackton, as he now calls himself, and he threatens to show her his girl's love letters to Dane if she interferes. Hawthorne does not know what to do, and finally, in desperation, she suggests to Dane that she take Julie away for a time. When the matter is put up to her, however, Julie rebels and threatens to run away with Blake. It is then that Hawthorne tells the girl the truth, and when Julie rejects it, she makes up her mind to make any difference in her decision, she is finally persuaded to turn back by Hawthorne's remark that the blame will fall on her shoulders.

CHAPTER XII.

The Breakdown.

JULIE's eyes were narrow, they were the eyes of a woman of the world, for in that moment all girlhood had departed from them. There was no pity in them for the even if her suspicion had been true, and I covered back from that look. In a moment, however, my pride had recovered itself. Her remark, which had been almost a taunt, had brought me to myself. I raised my head haughtily.

"You're wrong, quite wrong," I said softly. "There was never anything but the slightest love affair between myself and Cranford Blake. He was a child dreaming of romance, and he was a man of the world, already smirched with the sores of loose living. I can't understand you, Julie. I don't know how your mind works. I don't see how you could believe that I would marry Dane without anything of that kind in my past."

Julie's eyes wavered. "But your fear of Dane's knowing," she persisted. "Why should you be so afraid when you have done nothing wrong?"

My heart was heavy in the face of this question. How could I explain to Julie that Dane was narrow, that he would resent with me, that I had ever fancied myself in love with a man beneath my notice, that his ideas of women were archaic, and that my love for him was selfish in that I wanted to keep his illusions of me unsoiled? Something in me cried out against explaining this to Julie. I couldn't discuss Dane with her nor with any one else.

"When you are really in love with a man you'd hate to think of the others," Julie said earnestly. "You'd be so sure that the one you love is the only one who is above all, some one who is unworthy."

"That's narrow!" Julie scoffed wildly. "And I won't have you talking like that about Carroll, Hawthorne. I won't have it!" Her voice was convulsed with passion. But a moment later her face twisted and, like the little girl she was, she flung herself on the bed in a paroxysm of sobs.

She cried until she was exhausted while I hung over her, my ears strained toward the door. It was hysterical sobbing, and any noise in the corridor could have been heard. I was terrified lest Mrs. Merrill burst in upon us and ask for the reason of this outburst, and I prayed that she would not hear.

Finally I gathered her up against my breast and she sobbed more and more.

The Army of a Million Crooks

A study in scientific criminology. Facts gleaned from the records of the Berkeley School for Police and of its founder, August Vollmer, president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and leading authority on criminology.

The War on Crime

by Geo. C. Henderson

Introduction

By August Vollmer.

A MARKED departure from the conventional methods of treating criminological matters distinguishes "The Army of a Million Crooks" and places the work of the author in a category by itself.

Never before in the history of this subject has anything quite like this story been compiled. The study of modus operandi is not new and although every police officer knows that certain types of criminals have certain well defined characteristics, yet it has remained for the author of "The Army of a Million Crooks" to correlate and combine this data under one heading.

The criminology of today has graduated from the stage when students were wont to consider the lawbreaker as a distinct type and at present the entire attention of the best authorities is being given over to an examination of the individuality of the criminal.

This is the first extensive work to be published which thoroughly interprets the modern phase; which takes up each class of offender from the practical standpoint of analysis of his methods and which defines the criminal by actually showing him in operation.

After reading "The Army of a Million Crooks," the student in criminology will find that he has come in contact, almost personally, with the classes of men and women whom he has been studying in the abstract or individually. From the pickpocket or the burglar, the thief, the forger, the swindler, the murderer he will be able to understand more readily the crime problem.

The offender today is coming in for more genuine attention and more serious study. Everything of jealousy and misunderstanding was washed away with her tears. We were just two women who needed each other at that moment, and God knows I understood exactly what Julie was suffering.

Of course, such a moment of understanding could not last, and finally Julie drew away. But she did not draw away from me in anger, although I felt that she had again raised a barrier between us, and that she intended to keep it raised.

"What are you going to do?" I whispered finally.

"I don't know," she answered. "I must think."

"But you won't run away, you won't do anything rash?" I asked anxiously.

"No, I won't do anything rash. You needn't be afraid, Hawthorne. I won't bring down any more trouble on your head."

She was strangely quiet and after a time she went to work to remove the traces of tears from her face. Her eyes were a far away expression, but her face betrayed nothing. I wondered what she was thinking, and most of all I wanted to know how she felt toward Cranford Blake. That was the important thing. Did she still love him as she had, or had my warning done some good after all?

Tomorrow—Doubts and Fears.

My Favorite Stories by IRVIN S. COBB

Tired of Dealing With Crooks

A rugged person, who had acquired a considerable fortune in the wet goods business and kindred lines of endeavor in the old wide-open days in Denver, decided to invest some of his savings in oil and mining stocks. From this beginning he presently progressed to the point where he became an active partner in a stock-brokerage establishment in Chicago. The venture, so far as he was concerned, did not prove a success. Expensive litigation ensued. While the wreckage was being cleared away by legal methods, the disillusioned ex-saloonist bared his inner feelings to his lawyer. It was the lawyer who told me what the client, speaking in all seriousness, had confided to him: "Hal," said the old fellow, "I'm through with this game. I'm goin' to take what's left—of so be there is anything left—and go back out west where I belong. This here stock-broking ain't for me. The trouble with it is that it's so full of crooks you don't know who to trust. You can't put no dependence in what these fellows tell you. They'll hand you what seems to be a straight line of goods and turn right around and double-cross you. "Now, I ain't been used to doin' business that way. Before I came here I never traded with none but square guys. For instance, now, you take it when I was runnin' that bar in Denver. A fellow that I knowed would drop in to see me and show me some jewelry or silverware or somethin' and ask me what I'd give him for it. I'd ask him where he got it, and he'd say to me: 'I lifted it tonight at Jones, the banker's house.' 'All right,' I'd say, 'I'll give you so much for it and take my chances on cleanin' up a little profit on the reward that'll be offered. He'd say that suited him and I'd hand him the money and he'd beat it out of town. Then, next mornin', sure enough, there'd be a piece in the paper sayin' the residence of Mr. Jones, the banker, had been robbed the night before, and I'd know I'd been doin' business with a square guy."

Uncle Wiggly Stories by HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGLY AND THE SORE THROAT BIRD.

"WHATEVER can be the matter?" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly, as he hopped down stairs in his hollow stump bungalow one morning and saw no table set for breakfast. "I wonder what can have happened to Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy?" went on the rabbit gentleman. "Nurse Jane! Oh, I say, Nurse Jane!" he called up the stairs. "Yes, Wiggy," answered the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I'm sorry, but I can't get down to serve breakfast for you this morning. I have a sore throat," and as Nurse Jane thrust her head out of the doorway of her room Uncle Wiggly saw that she had a white handkerchief tied around her neck. "Oh, I'm so sorry!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly. "You stay right in bed, Janie, I'll get my own breakfast and then I'll go for Dr. Possum, who will come and cure your sore throat. How did you get it?" "I must have caught cold going to the moving pictures last night," the muskrat lady said. Uncle Wiggly broiled himself some carrot oatmeal and fried a few slices of cabbage shortcake and then he hopped over the fields and through the woods toward the office of Dr. Possum, who cured the ills and troubles of the animal folk. Uncle Wiggly had almost reached the doctor's office when, all of a sudden, there was a rustling in the bushes, and a bird with a long, sharp bill, with long pink legs, and with light brown feathers on his back, hopped along out of a little puddle of water. No sooner had Uncle Wiggly noticed this bird than the bunny rabbit gentleman, exclaimed: "Oh, ho! So you have a sore throat too, have you, Mr. Bird, just like Nurse Jane? Well, come to Dr. Possum's with me, and he'll cure your sore throat." "Why do you say I have a sore throat?" asked the bird, who had rather a loud voice. "Because you have a white handkerchief tied around your neck, to keep your sore throat warm, just as Nurse Jane had when I came away from the hollow stump bungalow," said the bunny. "Ha! Ha!" laughed the bird, and his voice was not at all hoarse. "I have no sore throat! That white band around my neck is a band of feathers. We plovers always have that white band on our necks." "Oh, do you?" asked the bunny. "And so you are a plover bird, are you?" "Yes, that is one of my names. The other is Killdeer," went on the bird. "Oh, I hope you don't kill the deer!" cried the bunny. "Oh, no! Never!" cried the plover. "But when I call to my wife or she calls to me, we always say: 'Killdeer! Killdeer! Killdeer!' or at least it sounds like that." The plover cried aloud thus, several times, almost making Uncle Wiggly's ears ache with the loud voice, and then the bunny said: "Well, I'm glad you haven't a sore throat, and I'm glad you don't kill deer, even if that is your call. And after I get Dr. Possum to come and cure Nurse Jane's sore throat, I'll be happy to have you come to my bungalow and pick up a few crumbs." "Thank you, I will," said the plover, "though I eat more bad bugs and worms than I do crumbs. Still a few crumbs will do me good." Dr. Possum gave Uncle Wiggly something to make Nurse Jane's sore throat better and then the bunny and the bird with the white band of feathers on his neck went through the woods together. All of a sudden a big Bushy Bear, who was very hungry, burst through the bushes and stretched out his claws to catch the bunny gentleman. "Here! Give me your ears!" growled the Bear. "No! No!" cried poor Uncle Wiggly. "Yes! Yes!" growled the Bear. "Killdeer! Killdeer! Killdeer!" suddenly shrieked the Plover Bird, and in such loud tones that the Bear jumped back into the bushes, much frightened. "Killdeer! Killdeer!" yelled the Plover again. "Oh, my gracious sakes!" howled the Bear. "If he kills deer he'll kill bears also! That's what he'll do. I'd better run away and nibble Uncle Wiggly's ears another time! I don't want to be killed!" So off through the woods ran the bear, not hurting the bunny at all, and the Plover laughed, and so did the rabbit, and the bird cried: "Killdeer! Killdeer! I don't kill deer or bears, but I'm glad this old Bushy chap thought I did. Ha! Ha!" "Ha! Ha!" laughed the rabbit uncle. Then he hopped to his bungalow and Dr. Possum's medicine soon cured Nurse Jane's throat. As for the Plover, he had none, though always after that Mr. Longears called the bird "Sore Throat," just for fun, you know.

Off through the woods ran the bear

THOUSANDS WILL HEAR GERALDINE IN RADIO TALK

Singers Will Be Other Features of Tribune's Program Tomorrow.

Operators of radio receiving sets scattered over the vast territory in California and adjoining states covered by The TRIBUNE's broadcasting station, will be listening in tomorrow evening between 7:15 and 8:15 o'clock while KZM is on the air. Geraldine, of The TRIBUNE, who has helped solve the troubles of many and whose advice is sought by thousands, will speak into the ether waves.

Geraldine's talk is but one of the attractive features of tomorrow evening's broadcast. Little Wilma Bradbury, child contralto, called by critics "one of America's stars of tomorrow," and Miss Beth Bahls, known during the war as the "Battleship Girl," due to her many appearances as an entertainer on board American fighting craft, are two of the other attractions.

Harold Joseph Perry, called the "boy-Carusos" because of his unusual voice, will be one of the contributors. B. Solis, pianist, from the Philippines, and a young girl named to be accompanist for Miss Bahls. Miss Bradbury and the boy Caruso will be accompanied on the piano by Mrs. J. Fraser.

Geraldine will talk between 8 and 8:15 o'clock. The complete program for the evening will appear in tomorrow's TRIBUNE.

GIRL, 19, WILL GET DIPLOMA AT BRYN MAWR

BRYN MAWR, Penn., June 12.—Miss Gertrude Prokosh, is graduated from Bryn Mawr College this month who will establish the record for the youngest girl to receive a diploma from that educational institution. Miss Prokosh, who will not be nineteen until August and is a daughter of Dr. Vedward Prokosh, professor of German at Bryn Mawr. Furthermore, she will be a member of the Phi Kappa Phi society.

Disillusionment awaits those who think Miss Prokosh is a prodigy or a "grail." Aside from her scholastic achievement, which is in the way of completing the regular four year course at Bryn Mawr in two, she has made the highest strength test in the history of women. Although she is of very modest physical proportions, her record is 575, breaking the old record of 565. The regular college strength system includes bar, chinning and other gymnastic stunts.

Rail Unions Not to Remove to Canada

CINCINNATI, O., June 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employees department of the American Federation of Labor, denied emphatically today that the railway shopmen union have under consideration a plan to move their headquarters from Chicago to Canada to escape suits brought against them under the Coronado decision recently handed down by the United States supreme court.

Woman Burns to Death in Park

PORTLAND, Ore., June 12.—Miss Mary Edwards, 42, died at her home yesterday, after she was found in a park wrapped in flames. Her clothing had been saturated with kerosene and the empty can lay nearby. She died without explaining her plight. Persons drawn to the scene by the woman's cries told the police that she apparently had set about to take her own life.

Wife Beaten With Hammer, Man Held

PORTLAND, Ore., June 12.—Mrs. John Dillery, 38, was attacked at her home by her husband, according to the police, who beat her over the head with a hammer. Dillery was found outside a locked bathroom door, within which Mrs. Dillery had taken refuge. She was conscious from the effects of poison. At the hospital it was said both would probably recover.

POWERS COURT BALTIC STATES

RIGA, June 12.—More friendly attention has been heaped upon the Baltic states by various European powers since the Rapallo treaty, the trade agreement between Russia and Germany, was signed April 17 last, than during all the time since their creation by the Treaty of Versailles. This is because of the geographical position of the states, forming, as they do, the most accessible "bridge" between Russia and Germany.

Shortly after the signing the Germans started the ball rolling by a "hand shaking" expedition headed by Herr Blucher, Berlin's commissioner for the Baltic. Herr Blucher visited Kovno, where he spent several days with the Lithuanians, thence on to Riga for conferences with the Latvians, giving encouragement to the organizing for the opening of trade relations on a most friendly basis. Now Franco and Germany are vying with each other to curry Lithuania's favor.

The French missions in Riga and Esthonia have increased their personnel, and 70 leading manufacturers will participate in Riga's approaching trade show. Two French destroyers are making courtesy visits to Riga, Reval and Helsingfors.

Girls Beware of Wrinkles That Form Around Eyes or Mouth

When They Appear, as They Surely Will, Try This Successful Treatment.

The most dependable and effective method I know of to massage the skin with the Buttermilk cream recipe made by Howard Bros. of Buffalo, N. Y., rubbing gently across the line on the wrinkles to bring new fresh blood to the surface. If you will do this for about five minutes each night before retiring, no other treatment is necessary.

Howard's Buttermilk Cream is obtained by up-to-date drainage of toilet goods counter and no matter whether you are troubled with wrinkles, hard little lines around eyes and mouth, coarse sun-faded looking skin or simply roughness and redness caused by wind or other causes, these wrinkles quickly disappear with the use of this old fashioned recipe brought to you by the name of Howard's Buttermilk Cream. If you cannot obtain locally send 10 cents in silver or stamp for generous trial package of both Cream and Soap. Howard Bros. Co., 24 Main St., San Francisco, Calif.—Advertisement.

RADIO CARRIES GREETINGS OF ISLAM LEADERS

Shrine Day on Ether Wave Marked by Broadcasting of Addresses.

Today was Shrine Day on the ether wave for radio officially opened the Shrine convention in San Francisco when the chairman of the convention committee and the incoming and present imperial potentates broadcast greetings to the thousands of Shriners now in the bay district.

Colonel George Filmer, chairman of the 1922 Shrine convention, spoke from KPO, Hale Brothers station. He was followed by Ernest Cutts, imperial potentate, who responded to the welcome on behalf of the Shriners. "Sunset Time," a Quartet, who succeeds Cutts as imperial potentate, spoke next.

"Islam Greeted You," the official song for the Shrine convention, was also broadcast as a part of the special program.

This evening and tomorrow evening The TRIBUNE's broadcasting station, KZM, will dispatch a greeting on behalf of the Shriners. The station will be open to the Eastbay on Wednesday. Radio receiving sets have been installed at all the leading hotels in the bay district and at public places for the Shriners. Many magnavoxes have been installed.

RADIO DISPLAY IS OPENED IN S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—The first complete radio show held on the Pacific coast opened this afternoon at the Emporium, which has more than 50 exhibitors displaying their apparatus. Mayor James Rolph Jr. switched on the lights in the show room and officially opened the radio exposition. The switch will be open to the public without charge throughout this week of the Shrine convention. Special features broadcast from various radio stations about the bay will be included in the program. Movies also will be shown dealing with radio topics and the manufacture and construction of apparatus.

Arthur J. F. Dillon, radio inspector for the sixth district, has arranged a display of wave-meter measuring apparatus and other radio devices used for research and experimental purposes. An army of volunteers with sending and receiving equipment is also on hand and in operation.

Practically all radio manufacturing concerns in California are represented at the exhibition, and some from eastern states.

U. S. Relief Routed Through Petrograd

LONDON, June 12.—The port of Petrograd is now open and five ships carrying American Relief Administration cargoes have already been routed here. They are loaded with supplies for adult and children in Russia. The opening of Petrograd will ease the problem of the American Relief Administration. The port is now open to the Baltic. Of the 600,000 tons of supplies which the American Relief Administration is sending to Russia, 425,000 have already arrived. The other 175,000 tons are being shipped by the Volga Valley to maintain free feeding of 8,000,000 persons.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Radio Editor TRIBUNE: (1) Who was sending from 8:15 to 9:00 tonight night just after KZM had finished?

2. How far is it from Berkeley?

3. Is it further or as far as San Jose?

4. Has Sunnyvale as powerful a set as San Jose?

Member OTIC.

1. The Radio Shop, Sunnyvale.

2. Sunnyvale is between Mountain View and Santa Clara, and about four miles from Los Altos.

Radio Editor TRIBUNE: Where is The TRIBUNE's work shop for radio club members located, and do you have to be a member of the club to use the shop?

What are the dues to belong to the club?

Harold Webb, Hayward.

The TRIBUNE's work shop is located at 2205 Broadway, Oakland. Only members of The TRIBUNE Radio Club are permitted to use the shop. It costs nothing to belong to the club.

Radio Editor TRIBUNE: I want to take a wireless set to the mountains this summer and would like to know if a set made up of the following articles and using an aerial 150 feet long would work: one Reuter detector panel, one Reuter 2000-ohm condenser and a pair of Murdock 2000-ohm phones. The distance is about 70 miles air line from Oakland. There are also several big mountains.

Member OTIC, No. 1255.

We believe you will have difficulty in receiving any stations if the location is shielded by mountains. Looking forward to you by mail.

Radio Editor TRIBUNE: I built a rectifier set according to the specifications enclosed. I expected it to charge five batteries at the rate of six to eight amperes, but only charged the battery at the rate of three and one-half amperes. When charging at this rate the primary tap is set at 270 turns and the secondary is set at 50 turns and the amperage does not increase when I add more turns to the secondary. Is there something wrong with the line the amperage is set on or the line the amperage is set on?

Also, what does a choke coil do in a set? I have a line and how can I build one? If my rectifier cannot be remedied so I can get the required results, please enclose a new one.

B. J. H.

The tube is not designed to charge more than one battery at six amperes. If you desire to charge five or six batteries at one time at the rate of six amperes you will have to get a rectifier of larger capacity. Every time you put an additional battery on the line the charge current is reduced, due to the added resistance. A motor generator set or a mercury arc would be necessary to charge a number of batteries.

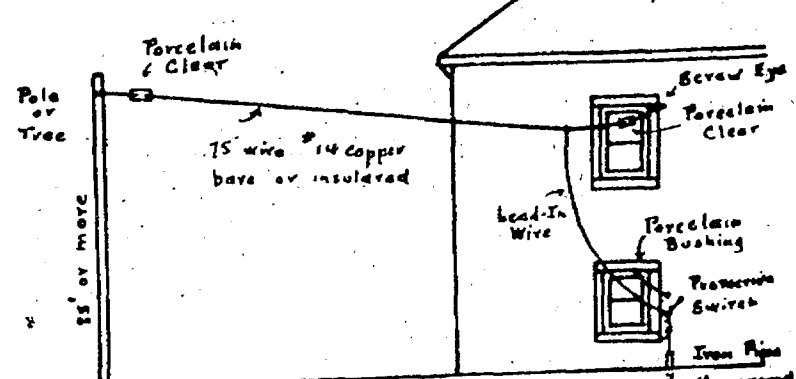

You do not know from what specifications you constructed your outfit we cannot say what might be wrong. Of course, your hookup appears to be O. K. The blue flame is undoubtedly due to incorrect ratio of turns. If you desire to charge batteries in quantities we would advise you to purchase some sort of rectifier which will serve your purpose. We have come in contact with a number of home-made outfits such as yours and have never yet found one to operate correctly.

The simple receiving set to be described can be constructed by anyone who is handy with tools at a cost of about $7. The telephone receivers must be purchased and range in cost from $4 to $20, depending on their quality and sensitivity.

Besides the telephone the installation consists of the antenna, the ground connection, protective switch and the receiving set itself. The antenna should consist of 75 feet of No. 14 bare or insulated copper wire and supported by a porcelain insulator on the building in which the set is to be located. The other end may be supported by a tree, pole or other structure at the required distance employing another insulator to insulate the wire from its supports. The wire should be supported as far from the ground as possible, at least twenty-five feet. A lead-in wire is spliced to the horizontal wire at the point where it enters the house as possible. The insulating tube set in the window frame or sash, near which the receiving set is to be installed.

The protective switch consists of a double throw single pole battery switch of about thirty amperes capacity, the type usually mounted on a porcelain base about one inch by four inches. The antenna wire is connected to the middle contact of this switch, which should be mounted on the window frame outside and near the lead-in porcelain bushing. The lower contact of the switch is connected to a wire which is run straight down to a good connection on an iron pipe driven into the ground for about four feet. When the set is not in use the switch is thrown so that the antenna is connected to ground through the driven pipe. For receiving purposes only a wire may be run inside the house to the water pipe as near to the point where it enters the house as possible. The pipe should be scraped bright and several turns of scraped wire twisted around the pipe with pliers to secure a good connection. A simple ground clamp may be purchased for a few cents. If difficulty is experienced in making the connection.

The illustration shows in detail how the antenna and outside ground system is constructed. Ordinary porcelain clean insulators are sufficient for insulating a receiving antenna. The principal points to keep in mind are to keep the foot length for the horizontal wire which should be hung in the open and not over the roof if possible and to get the wire as high above the earth as practicable.

The receiving set itself, which will receive signals from stations of moderate power within the area

Club Will Hold "Jinx" Meeting

The Bay Counties Radio Club will hold a "jinx" meeting at the Alden library, Fifty-second and Telegraph avenue, Oakland, at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, if it was announced today. A free "feed" for members of the club and an auction of radio material will be included in the program, which follows the regular meeting.

Colored Mob Slays White in Richmond

RICHMOND, Va., June 12.—P. L. Burleson, a conductor in the employ of the local street railway company, was stabbed to death yesterday in South Richmond by several unidentified negroes following his attempt to eject a disorderly negro from the street car which he was operating. The slayers made their escape before the arrival of the police, who reported that their search had been impeded by the crowd of negroes who swiftly gathered in the vicinity.

TYPE OF TUNER IN SHORT WAVE WORK ANALYZED

Capacitively Coupled Set Is Declared to Be Peer of All in Receiving.

By SAMUEL KOPELSON.

It would seem that the short-wave tuners using variable capacitors for tuning and inductive coupling are the sharpest tuning sets that are made today, but this is not so. Many types of receivers have been devised to improve the tuning, but there is one type of tuner that still is peer of them all. This is the Capacitively-Coupled Tuner. It seems strange, but up to the present writing I have never seen one set of this type constructed for short-wave work. Probably the chief reason why the capacitively coupled tuner is not popular in amateur work is that the amateur has been given the very wrong impression that this type of set is difficult to tune and on the whole is not as effective as the inductive-coupled type. I determined to experiment with this neglected type of tuner and after constructing several different sets I can say without hesitation that there is absolutely no other receiver for amateur work that can compare with the capacitively-coupled tuner, as far as tuning is concerned. As for signal strength, there was no difference from when using a standard short-wave set. The last set that I made is the best of the lot. It is so simple to make that the set can be constructed and connected in a half hour. Three variable condensers and one variometer are required. The condensers should have a capacity of .0005 mfd. each. The 22-plate Murdock condensers are fine for this purpose. If larger ones are on hand they can be used.

The primary consists of 30 turns of cotton covered magnet wire wound on a cardboard tube three inches in diameter. The secondary also is wound on a tube three inches in diameter wound with the same wire, but has 20 turns. The sharpness of the tuning of this set will amaze one who tries it for the first time.

Other, but should be about six inches apart. C1 is the antenna tuning condenser, C2 is the coupling condenser, C3 is the secondary tuning condenser. L1 is the plate variometer and is used in the standard short-wave set to obtain regeneration and oscillations. I have not attempted to place this set in a cabinet as yet, but expect to do so in the near future. The coupling is decreased by decreasing the capacity of the coupling condenser and vice-versa. The capacity of the grid-condenser depends on the type of tube being used. If the radio-tron U.V. 200 is used the correct capacity would be .00025 mfd. The resistance of the grid-leak is best obtained by experimenting with different values. The set would be tuned as any other type of set. For broad tuning large amounts of capacity in the coupling condenser are used, and for sharp tuning, small amounts are used. The sharpness of the tuning of this set will amaze one who tries it for the first time.

Kidnaper Flees When Baffled By His Victim

Seized by a man who attempted to drag her into an automobile as she was returning home late last night, Mrs. L. H. Freeman, of 997 Sixty-second street, is in a hysterical condition at her home today as a result of the encounter.

Mrs. Freeman fought for several minutes with the man before she was able to break from his grasp and run to her home where she telephoned the police. During the struggle she was handled roughly by the man who had her almost in the machine before she broke away. Then, apparently fearing that her cries would bring help, the man sprang into the automobile and drove rapidly away.

Mrs. Freeman was walking on sixty-second street, within a block of her own home, between Baker and Herzog streets when an automobile drew up at the curb and a man jumped out. He was alone in the car. He ran up to her and seized her around the waist, dragging her to the machine.

Mrs. Freeman screamed and stuck her hands in the face of the assailant. Continuing to cry for help she finally struggled free from the man's embrace and ran screaming toward her home. The man hesitated a moment and then jumped into the automobile and drove away.

A squad from the northern police station searched the vicinity, but he was not found. Today Inspectors George Burbank and Alex Trotter were assigned to investigate the case.

By this time Mrs. Gazzo's clothing was in tatters and she said she was about to lose consciousness when several neighbors, led by the daughter, came to the rescue.

Jones is said to have released Mrs. Gazzo and fled through the back yard and over a fence.

A posse of men and boys headed by Deputy Constable J. C. Boscard, 1417 Fourteenth street, started in pursuit. Their quarry was traced through several yards before he was sighted running down Peralta street. When he saw capture was inevitable he submitted without a struggle. Mrs. Gazzo later positively identified Jones as her assailant.

Robert Jones, colored, who says he was an officer in the Ninety-second division while the organization was overseas, was pursued and captured by an angry mob of men and boys today after, it is charged, he had severely beaten Mrs. Esther Gazzo while attempting to assault her in her home at 1824 Peralta street. Mrs. Gazzo was struck repeatedly about the face, several of her teeth were loosened and her clothing was torn to shreds.

Jones also is accused of having attempted to capture Mrs. Gazzo's eleven-year-old daughter when she fled from her home to summon aid.

According to Mrs. Gazzo she was about to enter a shed at the rear of her home, when Jones emerged from a hiding place and sprang upon her. Mrs. Gazzo resisted vigorously, at the same time screaming for help. This enraged her assailant, she told the police, for he struck her several times with his fist.

At this juncture Mrs. Gazzo's daughter ran into the back yard and seeing her mother's plight, started for the street. Jones, it is alleged, started after the girl, but seeing that he could not capture her, resumed his attack on Mrs. Gazzo, dragging her towards her home.
